Apollo on Target Surveyor on Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Saturn V super-rocket, performing like a veteran on its first test flight, buried an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,234 miles into space Thursday to spark new hope that U.S. astronauts can land on the moon in 1969. (See also Page 5.)

Piloted by an automatic pilot taking the place of astronauts, the Apollo spacecraft eight hours and 37 minutes later survived a fiery plunge through earth's atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour. It parachuted to a bullseye landing within sight of cheering crew members aboard the prime recovery ship in the Pacific 600 miles north of Hawaii.

Clocking off flight events with a precision described by project officials as "incredible" the 363-foot-tall Saturn V proved it can accomplish what it

Saturn's starting point

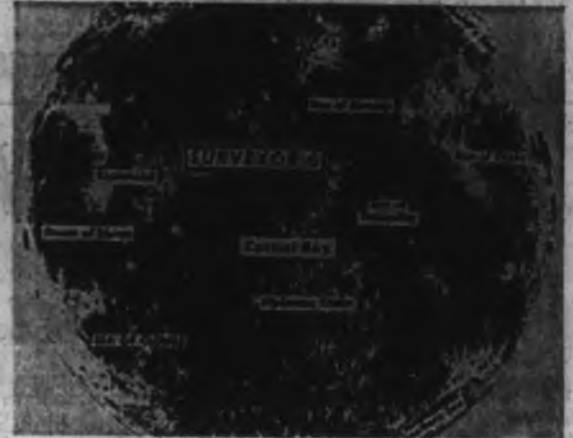

—AP

PASEADENA, Calif. (AP)—Surveyor VI settled softly on the moon Thursday and televised pictures of a rugged area never before photographed at close range, thus giving the United States its second space success in less than 12 hours.

First pictures, received 50 minutes after landing, showed one of the craft's three landing pads apparently undamaged. The soil around the pad was typical of the lunar surface, as shown in previous Surveyor pictures—a kind of sandy loam.

The three legged spacecraft braked itself to a touch-down at 5:01 p.m. in a rugged area near the centre of the lunar disk just a few hours after an unmanned Apollo moonship had splashed into the Pacific to climax an historic ride atop a 36-storey Saturn V rocket.

He'll Help Lepers

Leger Quits High Post For Mission

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger Thursday explained why he has decided to "give up the position of command to become a simple missionary priest" in Africa.

He spoke at a press conference a few hours after an announcement from the Vatican that he had resigned as Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands. The Pope has accepted his resignation.

A statement he gave to reporters said he believes that the Church is "a missionary body."

FIRST TO HUMBLE

"The day when she ceases to go towards those who have not yet received the Gospel, she will have turned in on herself."

"But if the Gospel must be proclaimed to all men, it is directed first of all to the humble, to the poor in spirit for whom our Lord always showed a particular concern."

He contrasted the world problems of hunger, under-development, illiteracy and "the silent suffering of thousands of lepers" with a "technocratic, efficient, automated and sophisticated civilization."

'WORDS TO ACTIONS'

"The time has come to go from words to actions. I wish to dedicate the few years allotted me to give spiritual and material assistance to the lepers. And so I am leaving for Africa."

He did not specify to which part of Africa he will go, but he said he would leave in mid-December.

The archbishop visited Africa and saw leper colonies for the first time in 1963. He said Thursday he likely will go to a part of Africa where there are no facilities for treatment of leprosy victims and try to raise funds to build such facilities.

'BOLEROIS'

Among the reasons he gave for his decision was the fact that "I have reached the age where a certain sclerosis of soul and body might set in."

"The spur must be used to get out of the rut. It is so easy to become installed in comfortable habits after having exercised authority for a long time, espe-

Run Departments, Not Campaigns

PEARSON MUZZLES 'HEIRS'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has put his foot down and ordered Liberal leadership candidates within his cabinet to stop their campaigning, informed sources said Thursday night.

Sharp

Martin

Hellyer

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and Transport Minister Paul Hellyer immediately began cancelling plans to attend the Alberta Liberal convention in Edmonton this weekend.

Registrar-General John Turner cancelled out Wednesday.

PANELISTS

All four were to appear as panelists on various subjects at the convention.

Sources said Pearson felt that some cabinet ministers were working harder for the leadership than they were in running their departments.

His criticism was reported to be aimed mainly at Sharp, Martin and Hellyer.

EFFICIENCY FIRST

The prime minister is said to be insisting that order and efficiency will prevail in the administration of portfolios as long as he is prime minister.

It was the second time that Pearson had had to lay down the law to certain cabinet ministers about their leadership aspirations.

SECOND TIME

Last winter Sharp, Martin and Hellyer suddenly cancelled plans to attend a Quebec Liberal convention.

The case this time was slightly different in that the four ministers all had been invited to the Alberta convention.

Sharp and Hellyer were to appear on two separate panels on urban affairs. Martin on one on foreign affairs and Turner on one on consumer affairs.

NO COMMENT

There was no comment from the Prime Minister's office.

Turner was in Vancouver while Hellyer left here late Thursday for Prince Edward Island.

Sharp and Martin were not immediately available for comment.

ANNOYED

Pearson was said to be becoming more and more annoyed that some of his cabinet ministers were spending a lot of time outside of Ottawa addressing political meetings of one kind or another.

He showed this annoyance in late September when at least half the cabinet was absent from the Commons when the parliamentary session resumed.

TOLD TO ATTEND

At that time he told the cabinet, reliable sources said, there would have to be better Commons attendance by cabinet ministers.

Sources said Pearson is determined to dampen down the leadership race until he announces the date for his retirement.

IF ALL WELL...

Current speculation here is that Pearson will make no decision about his retirement at least until after the Federal Provincial conference here in late January or early February. It is believed he may announce a retirement date if the Conference goes well.

Grade School Studies Hurt by War Fears

OTTAWA (CP)—Fear of war is causing an increase in the number of public school children with learning difficulties, says Ottawa public school psychologist Mrs. John Wickert. "I have seen children at the Grade 1 level worrying that they will be bombed, that the world will end before they reach Grade 3," she said in a speech.

Death Debate Led By Eloquent Plea

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's third major debate on capital punishment opened in the Commons Thursday with an eloquent appeal by Solicitor-General Pennell that MPs use their "reason, knowledge and experience" and severely restrict use of the death penalty.

He won repeated applause as he pleaded for support for his bill which would abolish the death penalty for all murderers except those who kill policemen or prison guards. The bill sets a trial period of five years.

COMPROMISE

He predicted it could be defeated only if an "unhappy coalition" should emerge between abolitionists who feel the bill does not go far enough and retentionists who feel it goes too far.

"This bill is, of course, a compromise," Pennell said. As a believer in the fact that "capital punishment is wrong in principle," he recognized this.

But he described it as the "most promising measure that can be introduced" now and its passage "will be a gain."

STEF AHEAD

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said all 22 New Democrats in Parliament support the bill in principle but the party intends to introduce amendments aimed at "directly and completely abolishing capital punishment in Canada."

Brewin criticized the solicitor-general's bill for its "indirect approach" to the goal of

Airplane Bails Out

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — A veteran pilot deliberately blew the wings off a four-seat airplane Thursday and the craft then parachuted safely and safely to earth in the first airborne test of a novel experimental system designed to prevent plane crashes.

"It came off beautifully," said pilot Thomas Walker of New York City.

"Anybody in the plane would have been safe."

Designers of the system, Dario Manfredi and Angelo Raiti, smiled approvingly. They are the founders of the Aircraft Safety Release Corp. of New York.

At about 4,600 feet and a speed of 80 miles an hour he pulled a lever and three pins in each wing were blown out, separating the wings from the body.

The only hitch developed when the wing chutes became tangled and the wings crashed to the ground.

As the wings were blasted clear, the plane looped in a circle and a specially designed parachute 64 feet in diameter billowed forth.

Walker remained in the cockpit noting characteristics of the descent until the body of the craft was at an altitude of 1,500 feet. Then he, too, parachuted clear.

Actress Found Unconscious

MALIBU, Calif. (UPI) — Actress Jennifer Jones, 48, was found unconscious near the surf at the base of a 400-foot cliff Thursday night, suffering from an apparent overdose of drugs.

She was rushed hospital where she was later reported "breathing under her own power."

'Message for Believers'

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican describes as exceptional the decision of Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger to resign as archbishop of Montreal to devote his life to lepers, but says it is "an expression of a message of authenticity for all the believers."

Under the heading "The Prince (of the Roman Catholic Church) among the lepers," the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano says:

"If a condition of suffering was as perceptible in the urgent and inflaming propositions of the archbishop, no one could have known or imagined the secret interior of the wakeful priest, the secret of the vocation within a vocation."

Egypt Talks Peace

CAIRO (UPI) — Informed sources said this morning Egypt wanted to work out a political settlement of the Middle East crisis with Israel under terms of a formula worked out last July by the United States and the Soviet Union. Algeria, an Arab world hardliner, was reported to have given reluctant approval to the Cairo move.

Qualified Cairo informants said the U.S.-Soviet plan, which died aborning at the United Nations last July, was acceptable to Egypt as a means of solving the dilemma.

The plan called for Israel to pull its troops out of occupied Arab Territory without delay and stipulated that mid-east powers must recognize the right of every nation — including Israel — to live in peace and security. The formula never reached the stage of a formal resolution for presentation to the UN but it could be revived, informants said.

The formula was worked out by Arthur Goldberg, the U.S. ambassador to the UN, and Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States.

Rhodesian Sides 'Reflect'

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and British Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson ended two days of talks here Thursday, the eve of the second anniversary of the white-minority Smith regime's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain.

A joint statement after the discussions said the talks covered all constitutional aspects of the Rhodesian problem.

"It was agreed that each side should now reflect further on the matters discussed, including the points of difference which they had identified."

Smith is expected to report back to his cabinet on the talks while Thomson is to report to the British government.

Some observers took the non-committal language of the statement as a sign that little progress was made in breaking the deadlock of conflicting policies that have plagued relations since the seizure of independence.

SALERNO, Italy (AP) — Two express passenger trains collided in pre-dawn darkness along Italy's southwestern coast Thursday after one of them rammed a herd of cows and jumped the track.

UN Body 'Kangaroo Court' Israeli Official Charges

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban declined to take part in the UN Security Council's debate on the Middle East Thursday night after it had voted against allowing him to reply immediately to Egyptian remarks.

Meanwhile, Gideon Rafael, Israel's UN ambassador, angrily denounced the council's action, calling the body "a kangaroo court" in an off-the-cuff remark to reporters.

The Israeli UN delegation, in a press statement issued after Eban had left UN headquarters in New York, said he had "declined an offer to address the Security Council at midnight in conditions prejudicial to the Israeli position."

SEVENTH SPEAKER — Listed as the seventh speaker in the debate, Eban would not have been able to take the floor much before midnight had he decided to reply to the Egyptian speech.

Egypt accused Israel of waging a "piecemeal war" and asked that the council apply enforcement measures unless Israeli troops are withdrawn from occupied Arab territory.

EGYPTIAN STAND

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad laid down the Egyptian position after the United States lost a bid to have the council let Israel speak right after Egypt at the start of a new debate on the Middle East.

Observers said the outcome of the vote was a sharp rebuff to the United States.

"We urge," Riad said, "that military, political and economic assistance to Israel be withheld until Israel . . . withdraws its aggressive forces from all the territories it has occupied as a result of its aggression . . .

"In the event Israel should refuse . . . the council must apply the enforcement measures."

SAME TIME

At the same time, the Egyptian minister spoke in favor of peace and non-belligerency in the Middle East.

"The peoples of our part of the world can in no way benefit from a state of war, belligerency and tension," Riad declared.

"We are committed to peace, but equally we are committed to overcoming aggression."

Riad accused Israel of waging war against the UN itself.

"Israel has openly expressed its defiance of the resolutions unanimously adopted by the General Assembly emergency special session on Jerusalem and the return of the new refugees to their homes," he said.

"Israel today demands that the United Nations abandon and wash its hands of the whole question of their aggression against the Arab States," he added.

Riad said the Security Council has the duty to apply fully the UN charter.

Who Runs Canada?

IT HAS BEEN recognized for many years that the U.S. influence on Canadian workers affiliated to international unions has been great. But in most cases the locals have had the last say through vote or otherwise to maintain some form of national identity.

The latest deal between Chrysler Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union is, however, entirely new in concept, and it is one which may have extremely serious effects on Canada, its independence, its economy and its way of life.

Chrysler has in effect agreed that its Canadian workers will receive the same rate of pay as those working in its U.S. factories. The process will evolve over the life of the three-year contract, but at the end parity will have been achieved. The say-so, however, comes from Detroit and not from Windsor. To this degree it could be claimed a U.S. intrusion into purely Canadian affairs.

The UAW was able to force the Canadian settlement on Chrysler because that company's Canadian subsidiary, which employs about 12,000 people, is wholly owned and controlled by the U.S. parent.

In this it is different from Ford, whose Ford Motor Company of Canada is a separate corporate entity with a minority Canadian ownership of the subsidiary shares and not those of the parent company.

Because of this minority Canadian ownership, the UAW was unable to force upon Ford (U.S.) the wage parity clause which it has won for Chrysler, and Ford (Canada) workers next month will be battling for their own contract.

With Chrysler, the UAW was held competent to deal not only with the company's U.S. employees but also with those in Canada, without recourse either to management or worker of the Canadian wing.

General Motors, which is in the same position as Chrysler in regard to its Canadian operations, will probably have to agree to wage parity just as Chrysler has done.

As a result, when Ford of Canada comes to make its own settlement, it will find it very difficult to refuse the parity which, willy-nilly, has been imposed on its Canadian rivals.

It is not difficult to believe that once the principle is established in the auto industry, the demands for parity will spread into the auto parts industry, then into engineering and manufacturing industries, and indeed into every unionized field where the Canadian worker is being paid less than his U.S. contemporary.

While there may be a sound reason for believing that the Canadian worker is every bit as good as the U.S. worker, there are other considerations which make it impossible for Canada to remain competitive without full economic union—perhaps political too—with its big neighbor.

With its smaller domestic market, and its shorter work runs, the Canadian company has considerable difficulty in meeting U.S. competition where the overheads are similar.

Only where as in the case of the auto industry there is a free-trade pact between the countries, or where there is full economic union, is wage and price parity possible. The price is loss of national autonomy.

Is it worth it?

So far the auto industry has not shown that the free trade pact has brought down the price of autos in Canada to the U.S. level. We may now ask will the Chrysler wage parity mean the differential in price between U.S. and Canadian built cars will increase at the consumer level?

If this is the case the wage parity won for Chrysler workers becomes valueless in terms of living costs.

The situation is so critical that the Canadian government, if it is doing its duty, must give further consideration to the question of allowing foreign companies to operate in Canada without some Canadian ownership, and to decide in light of what has happened if the type of trade pact entered into with the U.S. on automobiles is in the country's best interest.

Too Free a Hand

A BILL INTRODUCED in the Senate because of the pressure of business in the Commons will, if enacted, give the minister of defence production freedom to sign any contract if in his opinion it has to be entered into immediately in the interests of defence. The present requirement is that the approval of the Governor-General-in-Council—the cabinet—must be secured for peacetime defence contracts with the exception that the minister may sign a contract in case of emergency if competitive tenders have been called and the value does not exceed $50,000.

Before this bill becomes law, it is to be hoped the government can and will supply one or two examples of the defence of Canada suffering because the defence production minister has had to wait for cabinet approval of an agreement. Or if such instances cannot now be cited, it would be interesting, informative and possibly even convincing if the government would explain what sort of emergency is foreseen, that the minister needs such limitless power.

Do arms salesmen come around saying, "Look, we got these tanks on special, today only, just $127,000.98 a unit?" Or is it that, if the international situation suddenly deteriorates, the minister wants not to lose even a few hours in rushing through an order for an anti-ballistic-missile shield that will take three or four years to install?

This is being light about a serious subject. But there is no spirit of frivolity in suggesting that Parliament should have the fullest explanation of the necessity if it is to give the minister power to sign contracts without limitation on size and without cabinet approval, on the basis of his opinion that immediate action is called for.

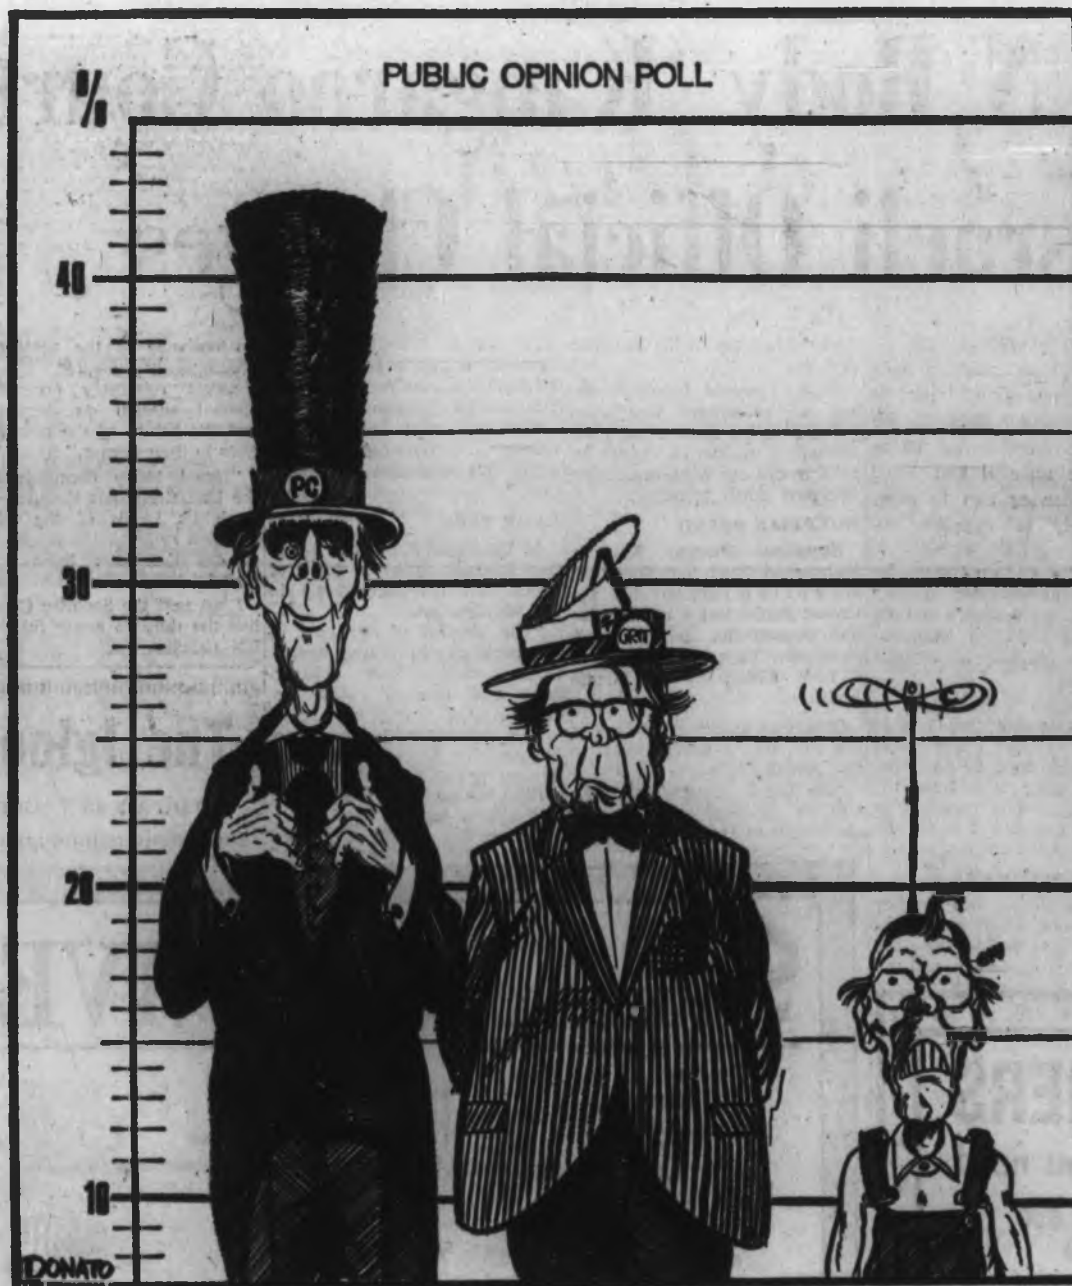

Pending such explanation it is difficult to imagine circumstances in which the slight delay of assembling a cabinet meeting would matter.

Internationalism

HON. D. S. HARKNESS: . . . Has the air-to-air missile known as the Sparrow which was to have been used on the CF-105 aircraft now been chosen as the air defence armament for the four new destroyer escorts which it was announced some two years ago were to be built?

Hon. Leo Cadieux (Minister of National Defence): . . . I do not think this particular missile was adopted. The story to which my honorable friend is referring pertains to a firing system which must be developed in Canada in order that a Dutch control system for an American missile may be used. . . and the appropriation of $7 million was for that purpose.

Hurtful Words for Mitchell Sharp

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

WEEP a tear or two for Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

He's so SENSITIVE. Feelings easily hurt. Can't stand criticism. And criticism is just about all he has been getting over the falling cost-of-living and the falling purchasing-power of the dollar.

But even so, it was just a bit startling to hear him emotionally choke up in the Commons the other night and burst out, so wounded, about his sensitivity.

It wasn't to be wondered at, he conceded magnanimously, that people were more and more concerned over inflation.

But they shouldn't get so worked up, he pointed, that they use what he called "extreme language."

His very own words, those. Well! What do you know? Wouldn't you think that finance ministers ought to be made of sterner stuff, covered by thicker skin, than to publicly sob in Parliament about being so sensitive?

But there they are, the very words — "I am particularly sensitive to criticism of government policies" — to plain black and white of Hansard type at the top of page 3414 of this word-by-word record of the Commons.

He sounded almost like a small boy, just this side of tears, after a spanking.

What had happened to so upset him?

Goodness knows he has been paddled enough in public over inflation that he ought to be used to it by now.

The difference was that this time he had been given a classic caning, and by one of the headmasters of finance, Ned J. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

And it had more sting in it than any other orange-headed federal finance minister ever before had felt.

What stung him was this:

Elementary Economics

From The Oregonian

THE class in elementary economics is in session.

Professor: As you saw in the papers, living costs are rising faster than income. Do you know what that means?

Student: That means we'll all go broke.

P. No, that means the president now has a good argument for his 10 per cent income tax increase.

S. But wouldn't that just make living costs all the higher and break us sooner?

P. That is not the way to look at it. If prices are going up, it shows people have too much money to spend and some of it should be soaked up in taxes.

S. How could they have too much money if they don't have enough to keep up with prices?

P. Oh, by the laws of economics the prices will come down when the people don't have so much money to spend. A. That'll be the day. And then will the president give them back that 10 per cent?

P. That, young man, is not a question for me. Try Dr. Precinct in political science down the hall.

"The fall in the value of money always stems from continuing government deficits — accompanied by an increase in the money supply to monetize at least part of them."

(You "monetize," the bankers will tell you, by having the Bank of Canada print more dollars to cover up some of the difference between government tax revenues and government expenditures. It is simply a subtle and cruel form of hidden taxation.)

"And it is not too much to say," Chairman McKinnon went on, "that government deficit spending, combined with permissive monetary policy (the printing of those extra dollars) that allows continuous inflation really involves a massive swindle — a swindle perpetrated on the great majority of the populace who are least able to protect themselves against the consequences."

This use of the word "swindle," which the finance minister, his sensitivity wounded so, was "extreme."

What was really hurting the self-pitying Mitchell Sharp was not so much his sensitivities as his very real gulf complex.

For he has been warned, over and over again by the financial community, both national and international, that in condoning and even encouraging what has been called "minor and acceptable" inflation, he was playing Russian roulette with the economy.

He knew, perhaps better than anyone in government anywhere in Canada, the truth of the maxim of economists everywhere that "people who talk of gradually inflating money might as well talk about gradually firing off a gun."

But he began to believe it only when Government of Canada bonds sold, just three weeks ago, at their lowest prices in history, and the chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce publicly accused him of "swindling" the taxpayer.

Never has a Canadian finance minister before faced such an accusation by a financial authority of such eminent respectability.

And poor Mitch Sharp . . . he's such a SENSITIVE person . . . can't you just weep for him!

The United Nations

WHAT restraints can the United Nations put on the Arab states and Israel to dampen the smouldering flames of hostility?

At first glance it may seem there's not very much. After all, despite its best efforts over nearly 20 years of peacekeeping in the Middle East, the UN failed to avert the six-day war last June. And in spite of two ceasefire resolutions, sporadic violations have occurred for four months, reaching a peak with the sinking of an Israeli destroyer and artillery shelling of the Arab city of Suez.

Now a new ceasefire order has been issued, and it remains to be seen if both sides observe it.

World public opinion is perhaps the single biggest factor which can be used effectively by the United Nations. But to employ this weapon, the world body must have at its disposal fast, thorough and totally unbiased reporting.

In a day when communications signals can be transmitted from Venus to Earth, when television pictures can be thrown across oceans by use of satellites, it is still dismally obvious that UN information-gathering machinery is sadly lacking.

Because this is so, the UN has been unable to fix the blame categorically for most of the summer's ceasefire violations. Thus neither Israel nor its Arab opponents has been held up to the world as the culprit in the renewed hostilities.

Even if one side or the other were clearly at fault, there is no guarantee that it would bow to world public opinion. South Africa and Rhodesia are fairly good examples of two states showing utter disdain for what the rest of the world thinks.

Nevertheless, most diplomats contacted here believe that strongly-worded resolutions by the Security Council or the Assembly have considerable effect, in that most states would be reluctant to flaunt them and so court political and moral pressure, isolation from the world community, and possibly even sanctions and use of armed force.

It is a fact, however, and this was recognized by U Thant in his annual report, that the UN is unable to operate in a peacekeeping role if any member state becomes determined to adopt a course of violence.

What is needed most is international effort, assistance and concerted action toward peaceful solutions and away from battle. This could best be achieved by leadership from the two great powers, the United States and Soviet Russia. Working together in the UN framework and with singleness of purpose, they could in most cases prevent troubled areas from erupting into open violence.

But even their influence is not infallible, as evidenced by the events of last July. At that time Russia tried desperately to pressure the Arab states into accepting a compromise which would then have satisfied the United States and Israel's friends. The Arabs refused Russia's arm-twisting out of hand.

Perhaps the United Nations' most important role is the one ascribed to it by U Thant: "The United Nations provides an invaluable repository and a safe target for blame and criticism which might otherwise be directed elsewhere. The organization has, during all its years and in many situations, performed a vital function as an international lightning rod."

Tiny Minority

Radical Youth

By PHILIP DEANE

THE young radicals in the United States are no more than two per cent of the young according to their supporters; they may represent the intellectual elite but their principal effect may be to produce a new McCarthyism in the United States, fiercer than the old. That is the meaning of the demonstration by 25,000 youngsters supporting the Vietnam war in Wakefield, Mass., some eight miles north of Boston, on Sunday, Oct. 29.

These pro-war demonstrators represent the majority in the United States. Indeed, they probably represent the majority of mankind, the people who are about the end result of government decisions rather than the way such decisions are made. These pro-war demonstrators are not necessarily pro-Johnson; they could turn on him if he loses the war either at the battlefield or the conference table. They do not want, young though they are, to be heard on how the war should be run; they want victory.

A whole series of recent public opinion surveys has turned up similar findings: the poor do not want to be consulted about how the schools are run; they want good schools.

The American working class, white or blue collar, up to high management levels, is not interested in the system of government; it assumes the system itself is good, the best in fact, "the American way of life." If the results of the

Communist China

Central Authority Only Vestigial

By ROBERT ELEGANT from Hong Kong

COMMUNIST China is entering the winter devoid of even the effective pretence of a functioning central authority.

The single unifying force still operating in the world's largest nation is unacknowledged by Peking's propagandists: a loose — almost tacit — alliance of senior generals which strongly influences — though it does not control — the virtually autonomous chiefs of the 13 military districts which are China's true government.

If it were not for the influence of that informal council of elder generals, even the bare semblance of nationwide authority might disappear, for the 13 commanders in the provinces are largely prevented by mutual suspicion and by differing circumstances from acting in concert.

The generals' group uses persuasion and moral force and works in a tenuous — almost arm-length — understanding with Premier Chou En-lai, who is still striving to preserve the vestiges of central administration and the central government which he helped undermine earlier by his adherence to the Maoist "revolutionary rebels."

There is little direct evidence of the activity of the council of generals — and almost none that would be admissible in a court of law. There is, nonetheless, general agreement among Hong Kong's more creative — and generally accurate — China specialists that the group's existence is the only satisfactory explanation of the present state of Communist China a year and a half after the beginning of the disruptive Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

The country would already have split up into openly antagonistic units, the specialists feel, if it were not for the influence those generals exercise on the People's Liberation Army, which prevents the total breakdown of civil order and forces moderation upon the militantly megalomaniac Maoist faction.

Other changes anticipated earlier by China specialists which have become more apparent in the last three months include the nearly total eclipse of the power of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his chosen successor, former field marshal and defence minister Lin Biao.

Mao and Lin have completely surrendered all the grandiose objectives with which they began the cultural revolution.

The Red Guards have further been told that "the great majority of teachers are basically good." That is a remarkable statement when one remembers that the chief ideological thrust of the cultural revolution was directed against "bourgeois academic savants" who were accused of propagandizing for the "restoration of capitalism throughout China."

Like the emperor of a decaying dynasty frantically seeking to bolster his authority, Mao Tse-tung made a hurried — almost clandestine — tour of five troubled provinces before the Maoists offered the tactical surrender. His failure to rally support, combined with Lin Biao's realization that he was losing control of those few troops still loyal to him, appear to have precipitated the sweeping decision.

Another major contributing factor was major disagreements within the reduced ranks of the Maoist leadership.

Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, remains the most extreme of the Maoists. She is in forced opposition to Lin Biao and the director of the cultural revolution, Mao's former political secretary Chen Po-ta, whose recent utterances have been notably moderate. But even Chiang Ching, whom most Chinese consider the evil genius of the cultural revolution, was forced in September to instruct her adherents that they might defend themselves "with arms" but must not attack their enemies violently.

Almost simultaneously, soldiers were ordered to use their weapons to suppress disorder — as they had previously been forbidden to do even when Red Guards stole arms from them. Thus were the Maoists forced to give in to their enemies or see the nation explode into total civil war which even they knew they could not win.

The troops, regardless of their own ideological positions, had gradually been forced into, at best non-Maoist and, at worst, anti-Maoist postures by the earlier directive to "preserve order and maintain the economy." It was, after all, not the entrenched, anti-Maoist "power-holders" who were creating disorder, but the Maoists in their attempts to "seize power."

Like any group of peace-officers engaged in suppressing disorder, the soldiers acted against the trouble-makers, in this case usually Maoist adherents.

Just as the People's Liberation Army, theoretically a tool of the Maoists, became a weapon against them, almost all the Maoists' political devices have boomeranged against them.

As early as January, the Maoists attempted to create their own new power structure by displacing the established organs of power with "Revolutionary Committees."

As of last week, they had formally established such committees in only eight of China's 29 major administrative divisions. The latest Revolutionary Committee in Inner Mongolia came into existence last week. But in most cases the local officials of the party, the hated "power holders," simply took over the Revolutionary Committees for their own purposes.

When the reconstruction of central authority does finally occur after a lapse that may well last a year or two, absolute central control is still unlikely to be restored. China can probably look forward to a loosely federated system administered on pragmatic terms, since the crystallization of anti-Maoist pragmatism has been the Maoists' single greatest contribution to the future of China.

Leaders Disagree

Despite the continuing disorder ravaging China, the end of the violent phase of the cultural revolution is, for the first time, in sight.

Belatedly recognizing that the People's Liberation Army would ultimately decide the outcome of the cultural revolution, the Maoists made a wholesale attempt to place their own men in positions of authority within the military hierarchy. But the pressure of events, the demands of patriotism, and the lure of power conspired to defeat their plans.

Each of the commanders of the country's 13 military districts today rules in the name of Maoism. But each administers his area in accordance with local needs and in loose alliance with the "local power-holders" from the township to the provincial and regional levels who still hold the levers of power among the civilian population.

The harvest, for example, is now in, and it is, according to most indications, an adequate harvest. But the presumed central authorities are not receiving their normal lion's share of that harvest. It is, instead, being retained by the farmers and by the local authorities.

Despite directives from Peking, the farmers once again possess private plots of land and sell a substantial portion of their produce for their own profit. Those conditions are an absolute refutation of Maoist policies.

It will be a long process restoring effective central rule. The natural splitting tendencies of China have been aggravated by the disorder of the cultural revolution, and traditional regionalism has been stimulated by the profound insecurity of the past year and a half.

When the reconstruction of central authority does finally occur after a lapse that may well last a year or two, absolute central control is still unlikely to be restored. China can probably look forward to a loosely federated system administered on pragmatic terms, since the crystallization of anti-Maoist pragmatism has been the Maoists' single greatest contribution to the future of China.

Rhodesians Live High

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Champagne glasses in hand, portable radios tuned to the voice of Premier Ian Smith beside their private swimming pools, white Rhodesians Saturday observed the second anniversary of their declaration of independence from Great Britain.

In Salisbury, the capital, Rhodesians are fond of saying they have accomplished in two years what it took the Americans six to do in their own battle for independence. And if private swimming pools may be taken as a measure of prosperity, the white Rhodesians have done well, indeed. New pools are going in at the rate of nearly one a day and already number one for every 15 white inhabitants in Salisbury. It is, of course, an oversimplification of a problem which is drawing an ever-sharper line between black Africans determined to rule their continent and whites equally determined to hold what they regard as their own.

And in Rhodesia it is the determination of 225,000 Europeans to maintain their rule over 4,000,000 blacks.

For Britain, which has attempted to force the downfall of the rebellious Smith government through use of rigid sanctions, it is both a moral and an economic question.

Morally, the British are committed to establishment of an independent Rhodesia under majority rule. And even as the British Commonwealth loses its economic meaning and the British seek entry into the European Common Market, they still feel responsibility for the disposition of empire.

The moral responsibility remains even though the economic sanctions in which the United States and most others among the United Nations have joined, admittedly is a failure.

Oil has continued to flow into Rhodesia through the republic of South Africa and Portuguese Mozambique, the two other nations most interested in white supremacy.

Rhodesian asbestos, chrome and copper move through South African and Mozambique ports, and familiar brand names on former imports are being replaced by development of some 200 new industries ranging from safety pins to plastics.

The new industries have helped to take up unemployment arising from the hard-hit tobacco and sugar export industries.

But even as the Rhodesians themselves have gained in confidence, pressures continue to build.

South Africa has established closer links with Malawi, Lesotho (formerly Basutoland), Botswana (formerly Bechuanaland), and seeks new accords with Kenya and Uganda.

But so long as the Rhodesian question remains, these efforts cannot be wholly successful.

They are pressing the Rhodesians to reach a settlement.

The Rhodesians themselves do not wish to cut all ties with Britain and still pledge loyalty to the Queen.

A new basis for talks is being sought.

If a settlement is to be reached, it must be somewhere between white Rhodesian determination to maintain the status quo and the British conscience.

Apollo Moon Project Success Recaptures Lost U.S. Prestige

From Cape Kennedy

The historic flight success of the Saturn 5 rocket Thursday gave the U.S. a fresh lead in the quickening race to the Moon and, more important, got Project Apollo back on its feet.

It also proved that months of painstaking preparation, tests and rehearsals pay off. Not only did the rocket do everything expected of it, but it got off on time to the second — a feat no one dared predict.

The momentous launch came just 10 days after the Soviet Union mastered the two-satellite rendezvous and hookup technique that it apparently needs for the orbital assembly of moon-bound spacehips.

The United States passed that milestone with its successful Gemini program last year.

Thursday's Apollo 4 mission proved that the rocket built to send Americans to the moon will work. It was probably the most ambitious test flight ever undertaken and its unqualified success makes it the pivotal point in the entire U.S. Moon program.

Russia's mightiest rocket is believed to be in the 3.5 million pound thrust range — less than half the power of the Saturn 5. And although the rocket is believed able to send men around the moon and back, it is not believed capable of sending a heavy manned landing craft there.

The plan to test fly the Saturn 5 in its entirety instead of stage by stage, was a gamble that paid off handsomely — not only for the program but for its people.

A year ago, Project Apollo was riding a crest of optimism. The first manned launch of the moonship, on a smaller Saturn 1, was in the offing and the initial Saturn 5 test was scheduled for early this year.

But then the whole program appeared on the verge of collapse. The Saturn was stalled by developmental troubles and then the Apollo 1 disaster in which three astronauts died in a ground test fire brought the entire program to a virtual halt.

The fire prompted a thorough look at the Saturn 5's Apollo 4 spacecraft. Hundreds of flaws were found. They were corrected, but added to further delays in the testing program.

Then, when Apollo appeared ready to get moving again, additional gloom resulted from sharp Congressional slashes in the space agency's budget for the current fiscal year.

The Saturn 5 launch then slipped into the summer and finally the fall because of numerous technical and procedural bugs that were uncovered in one of the most detailed testing programs ever run at the Cape.

Just two weeks ago, when the agency announced a launch date for the Saturn, program director Samuel Phillips warned that "we are in a very complex learning process and we are going to take all the time we need on this first launch."

The space agency had its prestige on the line Thursday, and launch crews knew it. A catastrophic failure could have further set back the nation's space program and would have wiped out any chance of landing men on the moon this decade.

But the Saturn worked and the entire Apollo Moon landing program took on a new look.

Jackie Aloof, Cool In Cambodian Visit

By WILLIAM TUOHY
From Cambodia

Official circles in the Cambodian capital are abuzz with speculation on the reasons for Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's uncharacteristic lack of warmth during her just-ended week-long visit here.

Mrs. Kennedy had been in a strange and uncomfortable spot for a woman whose primary interest was visiting the ancient Khmer ruins at Angkor Wat.

She received a truly royal treatment and she left with pretty Khmer girls strewing rose petals at her feet along a plush red carpet and MIG fighter planes escorting her U.S. Air Force transport.

But during her visit her host, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, had sent off cables exhorting America's Asian policy.

Her visit took place in the presence of more than 100 correspondents, photographers and television cameramen from several nations.

In the view of most correspondents, who were prepared to be as sympathetic as possible, Mrs. Kennedy seemed to go through her public appearances — at Angkor, at the dedication of the Kennedy Ave. in Sihanoukville, and tour of Phnom Penh — in an almost trance-like state.

Time after time, she showed no inclination to shake hands or even wave at the hundreds of Cambodians who had turned out at the ceremonies to wish her well. Rarely did her face show any other expression than a slight fixed smile.

On two separate occasions, she turned down a polite request from television correspondent Bernard Kalb, who is acquainted with her, to say a few words in English about her visit in Cambodia.

At the airport, as she was leaving, she was asked by Kalb, "Can you tell us something about your stay here?" Mrs. Kennedy turned coldly without a word and walked up the ramp to the plane door.

She seemed to be cast more in the mold of a Victorian monarch than a 20th-century woman who in many parts of the world is regarded as American royalty which in Cambodia certainly — as Sihanouk demonstrates almost daily — means warm, human contact with people.

It may be argued that Mrs. Kennedy came to Cambodia on a private visit and therefore should not be required to open her mouth or to be put on display. But Sihanouk had arranged various public appearances to which she presumably agreed and he, like any popular politician, was anxious to welcome her in good taste and also to show her off to his people.

Perhaps the most charitable explanation of what is regarded — among the press corps at any rate — as Mrs. Kennedy's aloof and cool public style is that she was advised by the state department not to open her mouth because of possible diplomatic complications.

Her visit came under difficult circumstances. Prince Sihanouk was exchanging messages with strongly anti-American remarks to Communist nations and leaders. Also, since she was accompanied by Lord Harlech, Sir David Ornby-Gore, romantic rumors began.

Chrysler Precedent Worries Economists

Wage Parity: Labor Threat or Treat?

By ROBERT D. BOTT
From Toronto

Widespread U.S.-Canadian wage parity labor settlements could result in dangerous escalation of inflation in the Canadian economy, economic observers agreed here Thursday.

But the open question in the wake of Wednesday's parity settlement at the Chrysler Corp. by the United Auto Workers was whether the pact would spur parity settlements in other industries.

Economist John Fryer, director of the research department of the Canadian Labor Congress, argued that the automobile industry is a "special case" because government agreements have permitted creation of a "continental market" with "rationalized" or equalized productivity per worker.

Inflation Boost

Fryer denied that the Chrysler settlement would result in widespread settlements based on parity of wages for workers in Canadian industries where productivity is not comparable with that of U.S. workers. "We don't know of any responsible labor leader who has called for across-the-board wage parity," Fryer said. "We certainly haven't." Two commercially associated economists here, who declined to be identified by name, agreed to the statement that "wage parity agreements will further hike the current inflation." But neither would speculate to what extent the UAW-Chrysler pact would lead to parity agreements in other industries, admitting only that some parity settlements seemed likely to follow the Detroit agreement.

Widening Gap

Three academic economists in Toronto and Ottawa who are well qualified to speak on the problem of U.S.-Canadian wage parity in relationship to productivity were not available for comment Thursday. The current inflated situation is aggravated by and aggravates two other economic problems currently facing Canada — investor uncertainty over stability of the government in the face of French-Canadian separatist activity, and a severe housing shortage that threatens to push the price of owning their own home beyond the reach of lower income and lower middle income families.

The danger of across-the-board parity settlements is that they would give Canadian workers equal average wages for considerably lower average productivity. Productivity per worker in Canada is estimated at 20 to 33 per cent lower than in the United States.

Figures provided by the Canadian Manufacturers Association put the productivity gap at 30 to 33 per cent. In 1965, this included a 22.5 per cent lower value added per man-hour in Canada and an 8 to 10 per cent allowance for higher manufactured goods prices in this country.

More Damage

In a recent speech, CMA president, R. A. Engholm noted that as "Canadian price indices have been rising substantially at a faster rate than those of our principal competitors, it therefore follows the Canadian manufacturer will find it increasingly difficult to market his goods abroad."

Further price increases in Canadian goods will result in further damage to the competitive position of Canadian products in world markets, Engholm said. In 1966, he said, cost per unit in manufacturing increased 3.6 per cent in Canada and only 0.6 per cent in the United States. "We cannot hide from or ignore the fact that Canadian wages and salaries showed far more dramatic rates of increase during the same period than did those of employees in manufacturing enterprises in the United States," Engholm said. "And there has certainly been no subsequent moderation in this trend."

Small Market

The reason for lower productivity in Canadian industries, observers stressed, is not that Canadian workers are "lazy," but simply that the smaller domestic market in Canada results in higher costs per unit despite lower wages than the average in the United States.

Fryer said the term parity was really only applicable to industries such as automobiles and farm implements where there were no tariff barriers and products were manufactured and marketed competitively in the countries.

U.S. Moonship Scores Bullseye on Return

is being developed to do—propel astronauts to the moon and become the "ultimate" rocket for U.S. exploration of space for at least the next two decades.

"Yesterday, I would have said that I think we have a reason-bly good chance of accomplishing a lunar landing by the end of 1969," U.S. Air Force Maj.-Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program manager, said after a textbook maiden launch.

"Today, I think that reason-

ON TIME

The most powerful U.S. rocket ever assembled rose from its launch pad on time at 4 a.m. PST.

Its three stages—The first two of which were flight tested for the first time Thursday—boosted a record 140-ton satellite into a low earth orbit 115 miles high. The tonnage included the Apollo spacecraft, its main engine compartment and the Saturn V's third stage.

Three hours later, the third stage re-ignited its engine to propel the unmanned moonship toward its peak altitude of 11,234 miles over Africa. Officials at first estimated the altitude at 11,386 miles, but later revised that figure.

The first operational use of the U.S. man-to-the-moon launch complex.

Five of the largest engines ever built ignited at the base of the Saturn V's first stage and sent a Niagara of fire billowing onto the booster's massive launch pedestal.

'Regulate Food Supplies'

TORONTO (CP) — Prince Philip Thursday night called for the regulation of world food supplies and prices to help assure that nobody goes hungry.

The prince said the amount of land under cultivation is sufficient to meet world needs if the population remains stable and if modern farming and marketing methods are adopted.

However, the introduction of modern machinery and methods in some countries would put a large number of farmers out of work and upset long-established living patterns.

He spoke at a dinner in his honor. Attending were delegates to the first conference of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, only Canadian member of the 19-member organization.

Eleven countries attended. Prince Philip, the star of the dinner, was just one of the blokes at society sessions earlier in the day.

BEG PARDON? Striding to doorway of Toronto's Royal York Hotel, Prince Philip's attention was caught by laughter of woman spectator. He paused, turned—and was struck in head by revolving door.—(CP)

Surveyor Lands

The combination of successes strengthened U.S. hopes of landing men successfully on the moon in 1969. Surveyor's mission is to photograph potential astronaut landing sites.

Flight controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Surveyor VI performed flawlessly through its action-packed three-minute landing sequence—firing braking rockets with split-second precision to slow its 6,000-mile-an-hour speed to three m.p.h. at a point 13 feet above the surface.

DROPPED FREE

It dropped free the rest of the way, landing at 10 m.p.h.

The touch down was only three miles from an aiming point set during a mid-flight steering maneuver. Tuesday and five miles from whatever remains of Surveyor IV, which went silent seconds before landing. Scientists said any object more than a mile away would be hidden from the camera of Surveyor VI by the curvature of the lunar surface.

"All signals are holding steady," said Dr. Al Hibbs, space scientist at the laboratory.

"Surveyor VI seems to be in perfect shape. The straight gauges on its legs indicate it survived the landing without difficulty."

The target area, in Sinus Medii-Central Bay—almost dead-centre on the front face of the moon, was much rougher than previous Surveyor sites. Scientists said the much-cratered region should be surveyed, however, to give Apollo astronauts a planned series of optional landing sites along the lunar equator.

ATTEMPTS FAILED

Launched Tuesday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Surveyor VI faced an "even-number jinx" because two forerunners, Surveyors II and IV, failed in their attempts to photograph Sinus Medii. Surveyor II had engine trouble in a mid-flight maneuver; Surveyor IV stopped sending signals just before touchdown. Surveyors I, III and V made successful soft-landings in other areas, televising more than 35,000 close-ups of rock-littered terrain.

The three shock-absorbing legs and cushioned circular foot pads were designed to keep the craft operating even if it set down on a moderate slope. Surveyor V landed on a 20-degree slant inside a crater Sept. 10 and survived to radio, for the first time, results of an experiment that tested soil by radiation. A similar device was aboard Surveyor VI.

Federal System Threatened

Canada 'More Vulnerable'

OTTAWA (CP) — John Deutsch Thursday spoke out independently for the first time on national unity and the constitution, warning that the federal system of government is both threatened and misunderstood in Canada.

In a speech to the Canadian Club of Ottawa he said Canada will be infinitely more vulnerable in the future than in the past to "dangers which arise from nationalistic fervor, demagogues and from both internal and external adventures."

Special status must never transgress on central government sovereignty over matters "necessary for the achievement of the common purposes of the country," Deutsch said.

Deutsch said maintaining

national unity is the greatest Canadian problem past, present and future.

In future, the task would require a method of constitutional change based on agreed principles and procedures for the protection of minority and individual rights.

Now an economics professor and principal-elect of Queen's University, Deutsch retired this year from the economic council. It was his first speech on major Canadian themes made free of his responsibility as government-appointed head of the advisory body.

'ON OUR OWN'

Deutsch said Canada has finally lost the virtually complete protection of its political and physical structure once provided by Britain.

"From now on, we are on our own."

To adjust to a fully mature and more fully self-reliant people, Canadians must give serious and sustained study to their social, political and economic problems.

WOEFULLY SMALL

"The resources which have been applied to scholarship and research in the social sciences has been woefully small," he said.

Wiesenthal, the man who found Adolf Eichman, said in Paris last month that Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's heir, was living in Brazil near the Paraguayan border.

Until now, the constitution has been remarkably flexible in meeting problems.

But in future, regional and cultural diversity "will offer great temptations to those who would exploit nationalist and regional feelings as a basis for power and glory, or the fulfillment of romantic ideals."

TEMPTATIONS

"Externally, our cultural and regional differences will offer greater temptations for foreign intervention. We had a dramatic example of this during the past summer."

Deutsch said after his address that he was referring to the visit to Quebec of French President de Gaulle.

To meet these dangers, Canadians would require greater efforts to understand and get to grips with the problems of a complex federal state.

MUST KNOW HISTORY

Canadians must study their history, understand social and economic developments, promote science, literature and the arts.

Communications, discussion and debate must flow across the country.

"Furthermore, in the future this must take place increasingly in both the languages of the two founding cultures."

Nazi-Hunter's Body Found in Rio Bay

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The body of a man reported to be an agent of Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal was found Thursday in Rio's Guanabara Bay.

Police identified the body as that of German-born Wilhelm Karl Ludwig Langen, a naturalized Brazilian. He had been missing for two weeks.

The newspaper O Globo says

Langen, 65, was reported to have worked for Wiesenthal's Nazi-tracking service.

Cause of death was not immediately announced.

Wiesenthal, the man who found Adolf Eichman, said in Paris last month that Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's heir, was living in Brazil near the Paraguayan border.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING PUBLIC SWIMMING POOLS

ALL PUBLIC SWIMMING POOLS in British Columbia are affected by new Regulations.

In addition to general safety features in the planning and construction of pools, the Regulations cover such important points as adequate ventilation, satisfactory bacterial quality of water, absence of greasy and slippery poolside surfaces and the availability of attendants and lifesaving equipment.

No "FILL-AND-DRAW" pool (that which does not provide a continuous supply of clean water) will be authorized.

Existing fill-and-draw pools must close by January 1, 1969.

New pools must be designed by a professional engineer or architect, registered for practice in British Columbia.

Written consent by the Medical Health Officer in the area is required to build a new pool or to alter an existing one.

The Medical Health Officer for the area is the approving authority.

NEED FOR NEW REGULATIONS

Many new public swimming pools are being built in British Columbia particularly in conjunction with hotels and motels. Regulations are required so that construction of all public swimming pools will meet authorized standards of SAFETY AND HYGIENE.

PURPOSE OF NEW REGULATIONS

To provide adequate standards for the design and operation of all public swimming pools to ensure safety and sanitation.

REGULATIONS APPLY TO:

- ALL PUBLIC SWIMMING POOLS, including those built and/or operated in conjunction with hotels and motels.
- Operators of EXISTING public swimming pools have until January 1, 1969 to meet the standards set by these Regulations.
- Pools in APARTMENT HOUSES and PRIVATE HOMES are NOT considered to be public swimming pools and are NOT governed by these regulations.

These REGULATIONS GOVERNING PUBLIC SWIMMING POOLS were authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on August 24, 1967 under provision of the HEALTH ACT.

Jets Pound Cong Camp

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines and North Vietnamese troops battled for 26 hours Thursday in another round of fierce fighting in the South Vietnamese coastal lowlands, U.S. military headquarters reported today.

With artillery and jet fighter-bombers pounding their fortified positions, the North Vietnamese regulars broke off contact at nightfall Thursday in the An Hoa sector, 27 miles south of Da Nang.

Farther south, the U.S. army beefed up its combat forces to about 3,000 men in the Dak To sector in an effort to root out North Vietnamese regulars, bloodied but still aggressive after a week's sporadic battles.

U.S. and North Vietnamese troops fought a fierce five-hour battle southwest of Dak To Wednesday night. Officers said 102 Communists and six Americans were killed. One U.S. infantryman and three North Vietnamese were reported killed in a further clash Thursday.

Intelligence reports indicate five or six North Vietnamese regiments, which could mean 6,000 or more men, are strung out in the region.

HEAVY RAIN

Meanwhile, typhoon Freda, with centre winds of 75 miles an hour churned across the South China Sea toward a landfall today on South Vietnam's mid-section. Heavy rain and wind may temporarily hamper both ground and air operations.

The U.S. command announced 178 Americans and 1,894 Communists were killed across South Vietnam last week. The South Vietnamese government reported 160 government troops died in action and the other anti-Communist allies listed six dead.

The American combat death toll since 1961 rose to 14,444.

Public Doubts War Leadership

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. said Thursday that in a survey taken for NBC News by the Gallup Poll, 48 per cent of the persons surveyed said they had "little or no" confidence in President Johnson's ability to handle the war in Vietnam.

Only 20 per cent of those surveyed said they had "a lot of" confidence in his ability to conduct the war, and another 28 per cent said they had "some" confidence, NBC News said.

A network spokesman said the sampling was carried out in all parts of the U.S., with nearly 1,800 persons interviewed.

A similar lack of confidence was reported in the president's ability to handle race relations and riots. Fifty-one per cent of those surveyed said they had "little or no" confidence in his ability.

Beaver for Buck Economist's Idea

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's dollar should be called something else, the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Thursday.

R. A. Engholm said in an interview that confusion is created because both the United States and Canada have the dollar as their monetary unit.

This makes people think the Canadian dollar is equal to the American dollar and that they should be making the same salaries as their American counterparts.

If the Canadian dollar were called a "Beaver," Mr. Engholm said, Canadians would realize that two different currencies are involved.

There is a difference not only in the exchange rate, he said, but also in what the unit of currency represents — the productivity level of the country. The Canadian worker produces about two-thirds of what the American produces for the same unit of capital.

Mr. Engholm, on a tour of CMA branches, said there can be no real equality of wages without equality of productivity.

The serious danger now facing Canada is inflation, and this is part of productivity. "The situation is becoming extremely serious, but we only need to drop the inflationary trends by a point or two to bring the economy back into line."

Cuts in government spending would help to do this, he said, but not alone. Labor unions must reduce their demands for increased wages.

"We advocate good wages provided they are related to productivity. If they're not, this will seriously inhibit our ability to compete for exports."

Crime Climb 'Organized'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Chief Ralph Booth Thursday warned that organized crime has moved into Vancouver during the last year and only specially-trained police squads will be able to root it out.

Chief Booth issued the warning in his monthly report to the Vancouver Police Commission.

"We know for a fact that prostitution, gambling and dealing in stolen property in Vancouver has national and international implications," he said.

"We also have reason to believe that professional businessmen and the occasional policeman have aided and abetted those involved in organized criminal activities."

The police chief said to fight "this enemy within" specially-trained units will have to be formed.

He said the Vancouver Police Department has attempted to make the most efficient use of its present manpower with modern equipment, innovations and selective intensified police training, but is falling behind in the fight against crime.

MEN NEEDED

He said serious crime — including robberies, purse-snatching and burglaries — is up 12.5 per cent over last year. He said burglaries of private homes is up 70 per cent.

Chief Booth said a detailed report covering the city's mounting crime situation is being prepared as soon as possible for presentation to council when a request for more strength is presented. He did not say how many extra men he will ask for.

Annuities Fall By Wayside

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Bob Hogarth, who has been selling government annuities in Victoria for more years than most people would care to remember, received word Thursday that he is to close his office down by the end of the year and go on pension.

The directive comes from Labor Minister Jack Nicholson, who says government annuities are no longer needed (in light of private plans and compulsory Canada pensions) and that the 60 to 70 local offices of the annuities branch are to close down immediately.

EARLY HOLIDAY

"It does not matter so much to me because I was well over retiring age," said Bob Hogarth who runs the Victoria office in the Post Office building. "It means I'll be able to take that long holiday in Scotland a little earlier than I had anticipated."

However, not all of the 70 or 80 government annuity salesmen across the country who will be put out of a job are so lucky. Some of them are younger men not yet of pensionable age.

The government is not going out of the annuities business altogether. All existing contracts will be honored, and applications for new annuities will be considered, but there will be no more advertising, and no more local salesmanship. Applications will have to be made to Ottawa direct.

SAME RATES

Government annuities have not changed their rates and expectancy tables for several years. They pay only at the rate of 4 per cent compounded interest, and in the present high-interest-rate economy, they are no longer competitive with some of the annuities being offered by life insurance companies.

"The sale of government annuities has been going down in recent years as a result," said Bob Hogarth. "We had been expecting better rates for some time."

UNFAIR CLAIM

The Glasco Royal Commission of 1962 recommended that the government should at that time get out of the annuity field and leave the market to the life insurance companies.

The Commission said that the government was not charging sufficient administrative charges against the annuitants and that they were unfair competition to private enterprise.

NOT THE CASE

Recently, however, that has not been the case, and for the past two or three years the government annuities have been slowly dying on the vine.

I suppose it is symptomatic of the times. The old voluntary savings business has been abandoned by the welfare state-minded government and in its place is the compulsory Canada Pension.

NEW EXOTIC WONDER

Canada's latest "high science exotic" type stock went on offer this week and the first trading in it was at more than double the issue price.

General Impact Extrusions, a Canadian offshoot of a U.S. firm offered 110,000 shares at $5.50 and the first "over the counter" trading in them was at more than $11.

Said one local dealer ruefully, "It sounds nice, but we didn't get any of them to sell. They were distributed in the Toronto area."

EXPENSES RISE

Net profit of Great Lakes Paper for the nine months to Sept. 30 was $3,139,402 (87 cents), compared with $3,988,381 ($1.11).

Third quarter figures were $1,011,520 (28 cents), against $1,289,820 (38 cents) in the corresponding period of 1966.

Sales rose 14.2 per cent, and the 21.3-per-cent drop in net profit was due to higher costs, and increases in depreciation and interest charges.

JACK JOINS KAISER

Former general manager of Cowichan Copper Ltd. at its Jordan River mine, Jack McIntosh, has joined the Kaiser Engineers Division of Henry J. Kaiser Co. (Canada) Ltd.

He will be based in Vancouver and will be responsible for the development of engineering and construction projects within the mineral industries in B.C., Alberta, and the Yukon for Kaiser.

Before joining Cowichan, McIntosh was general manager of the old Sheep-Greek Mines Ltd., taken over by Aetna Corp.

STAINLESS COSTS MORE

An increase of between 5 and 7 per cent in the base price of chrome nickel grades in stainless steel sheet and strip is announced by Crucible Steel of Canada.

The company explains that stainless steel scrap, which represents 5 per cent of the raw material cost in stainless steel ingots, has risen by 33 per cent in a year, while an increase of 20 per cent in the price of nickel has occurred in the same period.

Danco plant spews its fumes

Nova Scotian Farewell to Dosco?

Sydney Waits Sadly for Decision

By DAL WARRINGTON

SYDNEY (CP) — Rust-colored smoke from the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. plant drifted across this Cape Breton Island city Thursday as it has for 57 years. But many Sydney citizens wondered sadly if it would be billowing six months from now.

They might get an answer by next Wednesday, Nov. 15. That is the deadline to which Nova Scotia's Premier G. I. Smith apparently is conducting his urgent negotiations to keep Nova Scotia's largest single industry going, at the taxpayers' expense if necessary.

That is the date by which Dosco says it must have an answer to conditions under which it will continue to buy Cape Breton steel for its Montreal plant after Dosco moves out of Sydney. Experts say Sydney must have this market if it is to survive under any management.

There is speculation the expected announcement might be held up until after a "save-the-steel plant" parade scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 19.

SUCCESS HOPE

Promoters are striving for a turnout of thousands to strengthen the hands of solution-seekers.

If Mr. Smith succeeds, the 128,000 residents of Sydney and surrounding Cape Breton county can sigh with relief. If he does not, well, no one wants to consider that prospect. Loss of the plant's $24,000,000 annual payroll will be felt throughout the province.

Life continues. Meanwhile, life in Sydney goes on with little outward sign that its citizens face a crisis. The 3,235 Dosco employees work regular shifts as if the company had never said it is through with steel-making here next April.

Street traffic is as heavy as ever. Motels and hotels are full or nearly so. Harvey Webber, board of trade president, says the effect on business has been erratic. Sales of food, clothing and the like are good, better than normal in some stores. Discount stores particularly report good volume, part of it generated by price-cutting stimulated by opening of a new chain department store.

Reflects feeling. "It seems to reflect a feeling of confidence in the eventual outcome," he says, "or a feeling of mystical hope. If you want to call it that."

Real estate business has been hard hit, though. Dosco's bombshell plant-closing announcement of Friday, Oct. 13, brought chaos to the property market.

Real estate agent Ray Good-nick says no one knows what property is worth now. Only a long-range solution to the steel plant problem seems likely to settle the market.

Dealers in cars and large household appliances also report a slump. Many people are holding back, waiting for "something to happen," before they commit themselves to long-term credit purchases.

Mr. Webber said finance and mortgage companies' credit applications nosedived after the blow fell. Bill collections held steady, however. "People are paying their bills well," he said.

James Nicholson, district director for the United Steelworkers of America, said the steel plant workers were encouraged by quick government action in the crisis. They awaited hopefully for a report from accountants and steel experts investigating the financial and economic status of the mill.

Dollar Exchange To Affect Parity

DETROIT (CP) — Whether Canadian car workers get true parity with American workers will depend on the rate of exchange between the dollars of the two countries.

A new agreement worked out here between the Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers union calls for parity in wage scales—emphasis on the word scales—between Canadian and American workers of the company by 1970.

Thus the Canadian scale will increase about $1 an hour after 2½ years. But the pay will be in Canadian dollars.

If the exchange difference between the two dollars continues, the Canadian workers still will receive less than their American counterparts.

The Canadian dollar now is worth about 92 cents American. Conceivably a time could come when Canadians receive more than American workers. That would be if the Canadian dollar becomes more valuable than the American dollar.

Lower-Rate Freight Eyed for Maritimes

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal by the railways that would lower less-than-carload freight rates in the four Atlantic provinces at the cost of another $1,000,000 a year in federal subsidies was disclosed Thursday in the Commons by Transport Minister Hellyer.

The action follows a storm of complaints from Maritime shippers and their provincial governments about regional rate increases on non-carload shipments.

Mr. Hellyer asked the railways last week to review the situation and they gave notice Thursday of an application to the Canadian transport commission to revise the rate structure.

Informants said the revision, if approved by the new transport commission, would add $1,000,000 to the $15,000,000 already budgeted this year for freight subsidies under the Maritime Freight Rates Act, which has existed since 1927.

Mr. Hellyer said the government is willing to provide the extra money.

Popular Dick Munn, former pro at Victoria's Cedar Hill club, the course on which he learned the game, has been appointed head professional at Point Grey Golf Club, Vancouver, Munn, about 34, will succeed Leroy Goldsworthy whom he has served as assistant for two years, on Jan. 1, when the latter retires. ## Free Throws Worth a Trip

Victoria Chinooks of the Inter-City Junior league will invite the city's best under-12 and under-14 free throwers to be their guests in Vancouver when Boston Celtics and Seattle Sonics meet Feb. 24 in a National Basketball Association game.

Starting Saturday night at Central Junior High gym when Chinooks meet Vancouver CYO in a league game, free-throw contests will be held at each Chinook game until the winners are declared.

The contest is limited to players in the Victoria minor basketball program.

Chinooks Facing Crucial Weekend — Saints March In

There may be more crucial weekends in the Inter-City Junior Basketball league later in the season but this is the most important to date.

The results of four games could produce a three-way tie for top place — or could send either Victoria Chinooks or Vancouver CYO Saints into sole possession of first place with a comfortable four-point margin.

| CHINOOKS      | GP | W | L | P   | PTS |
|---------------|----|---|---|-----|-----|
| Vancouver CYO | 4  | 3 | 1 | 401 | 10  |
| Killarney     | 4  | 3 | 1 | 335 | 10  |
| Vancouver IGA | 4  | 2 | 2 | 411 | 7   |
| North Shore   | 4  | 2 | 2 | 420 | 7   |
| Jaysvee       | 4  | 1 | 3 | 331 | 4   |

Next games: Saturday, 8 p.m. — Chinooks and CYO at Central Junior High; IGA and UVic Jayvees in Vancouver.

Current co-leaders, Chinooks and Saints, meet at Central Junior High here Saturday and Sunday and a double win for either team would produce the undisputed leader. It would likely also drop the double loser into third place.

Present fourth-place Vancouver IGA, just two points behind the top teams, host the winless UVic Jayvees in a pair of games.

A split between Chinooks and Saints and a double win by IGA would produce the three-way jam at the top, although IGA has played one more game than the others.

Chinooks face their toughest test of the young season when they take on the Saints and they will have to stop Brent Maclean, a three-year veteran with CYO, if they hope to win.

Maclean isn't a big man, in fact he is only five-foot-nine, but he is the key to Saints' fast breaking attack and is tough on drives to the basket.

GOOD RECRUITS
Saints who have won two Canadian championships in the last five years, have five other holdovers — John Glaswick, Ken Elmer, Brian Hyland, Claire Wakefield and Tony Herbert.

They also have recruited well and their newcomers include Corey Jossul from Alberni Athletics seniors, Brock Hilliard from Alberni High, Glen Driedger from Vancouver YMC, Harry McCallum from Vancouver Sentinel High and Bob Cunningham from Prince George.

With Maclean, Elmer, Jossul, Hilliard and Herbert all originally from Alberni, Saints have a strong Island following.

TURNER CONFIDENT
Coach Moe Turner of Chinooks is confident however. He feels that he has a balanced club and that any one of his team can break out in a scoring rash at any time. He also believes that Ollie Mollanen, Rod Fields, Mike O'Connor and Dave Wirtanen could give Chinooks a good start.

Two of the top high school clubs in the city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, will provide preliminary action at 7 p.m. Saturday. Sunday's game starts at 1:30 p.m.

Vancouver Killarney got into the thick of the race Thursday night with a come-from-behind 54-47 win over North Shore.

The win moved them into a temporary first-place tie with Chinooks and CYO but they will be idle over the weekend as the others split the deadlock.

Killarney (54): Stevens, 8; Field, 10; Dugan, 10; Coulson, 1; O'Leary, 8; Elliot, 14; Galt, 10; North Shore (47): How, 3; Lidgate, 10; Wirtanen, 12; Klassen, 8; Marshall, 11; Trainer, 10.

Port Alberni Here Tonight

Port Alberni Luckies make their Esquimalt Sports Centre debut tonight in the Vancouver Island Hockey League and they will likely make an early acquaintance with Glyn Harper (above), a five-year University of Victoria veteran. Queen's Own Rifles and Tudor Monarchs open the double-bill at 7:45 p.m., with Luckies and Vikings meeting at 9:15.

Every Player

Celtic Levies $750 Fines

GLASGOW (CP) — Glasgow Celtic has taken the unprecedented step of fining every player on the soccer team who participated in the Battle of Monte video last weekend.

The battle was the World Cup championship playoff against Racing Club of Argentina when Celtic, European champion, fell 1-0.

By the time the match ended Celtic had only seven men on the field, four of their team and two Argentines having been ordered off after the match degenerated into a fight that could hardly be called soccer.

"It was a shock that the team which had established such a wonderful reputation for discipline should fall so badly from grace on this occasion," Kelly said.

REASON NEEDED
Celtic defeated Racing Club 1-0 in Glasgow. Then the Scots lost 2-1 in Buenos Aires, making necessary the playoff — a match that will go down in soccer history as the Battle of Monte.

Kelly said he thought he must put forward some reason for a "most unfortunate match" and added:

"Let me assure you that this club from the directors to the players, take responsibility for what happened on this day."

"A reason for our players forgetting themselves and losing their tempers so badly was the fact that winger Jimmy Johnstone, who had been so badly abused in all three games was jam at the top, although IGA has played one more game than the others.

Chinooks face their toughest test of the young season when they take on the Saints and they will have to stop Brent Maclean, a three-year veteran with CYO, if they hope to win.

Palmer's 68 Leads Field In World Golf

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Arnold Palmer shot a four-under-par 68 Thursday for a first place tie with young Florentino Molina of Argentina and gave the United States the first round lead in the 15th World Cup Golf Tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, Palmer's partner in the team competition, finished with a par 72. That gave the American team a score of 140 and a one-stroke lead over Molina and team-mate Fidel de Luca after the first 18 holes.

Nicklaus and Palmer are defending the team title they won last year in Tokyo.

KNUDSON OFF
George Knudson of Toronto, defending individual champion, was off his game and shot a 73. But team-mate Al Balding of Toronto shot a scintillating 70 to give Canada a 143 total and a tie for third place in the team standings with South Africa and Belgium.

Gary Player of South Africa shot a three-under-par 33 on the back nine for a 69. Team-mate Harold Henning had a 74. Belgium's Donald Swaelens and Florentino Molina fired a 72 and 71 for the other 143 score.

TIED FOR FOURTH
Balding's 70 over the 7,250-yard Club de Mexico course left him tied for fourth with J. M. Gonzalez of Brazil and Ramon Semota of Spain in the individual standings.

Several of the players, including Palmer and Balding, complained of slow play but said the greens—cause of some complaints earlier in the week—were in good shape after being mowed Wednesday night.

NICKLAUS IMPRESSED
Nicklaus made a big impression on the Mexican gallery with his booming, pin-point drives on the narrow, wooded course.

Nicklaus had trouble on the greens, however, and missed three usually-easy putts on the back nine alone.

Palmer, U.S. Amateur champion, shot a 68, while Argentina's Florentino Molina and Belgium's Donald Swaelens shot 72 and 71 for the other 143 score.

Most unfairly dismissed from the field by the referee.

"We do not want to individualize on the players, and are taking the unprecedented step in football by fining the whole team £250 ($750) per player."

O'Keefes Aiming At Province Cup

Victoria O'Keefes have taken aim at the Province Cup, a stepping stone to the Dominion Cup, and the competition will keep them busier later this season than they have been in recent weeks or recent seasons.

O'Keefes have passed up Province Cup play eight of the last nine years, but policy has been altered for a couple of very good reasons.

Province Cup play results in many "off" weeks for non-participating teams and with-out a PCSL test since Oct. 8 and the enforced layoffs in recent years while others sought the Cup, O'Keefes have had enough of idleness.

KENNEDY CUP CLOUDED
Regular-season PCSL champions in 1966, O'Keefes won the international tournament for the Kennedy Cup over teams from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Mexico but there is some doubt about the future of the Kennedy Cup competition and that's another reason for the policy switch.

The Kennedy Cup could become the victim of professional soccer which is enjoying increasing popularity in the United States.

O'Keefes will have regular Barry Sadler, slowed somewhat by a sore ankle, in goal Saturday when they resume Pacific Coast League action against Vancouver Firefighters at Macdonald Park.

HALF LINE
Dave Stothard and Donny McIntosh will be at right and left fullback and George Paul, Bill Hamilton and Brian Robinson across the half line.

Jim Morris is scheduled to start at right wing despite a pulled leg muscle. If he can't make it, Marty Taylor will draw the assignment. Peter Brett, Ike Mackay, Bert Soutar and Peter Wilson complete the front wall.

Blessed with plenty of depth, O'Keefes have Russ Ball, Dunc McCall, Ray Telford, Tom Westwater, Dick Joyce and Peter Wheaton ready for action if needed.

EXPERIENCED TEAM
Firefighters, presently tied with O'Keefes in fifth place largely because they have both played less games than higher clubs, bring a wealth of experience and a couple of highly-touted youngsters with them.

'BOY OF YEAR'
They will also start 16-year-old Glen Johnson, B.C.'s Soccer Boy of the Year last season, at left wing; Don Boyd, who has played the last couple of years with Columbus, at right half; and Ernie Koverchak, who was with New Westminster last season.

Also available are 17-year-old Bob Buchan, up from Grandview Legion; Ed Cannon, a holdover obtained last year from North Shore, and Tony Mazzel, a PCSL veteran who was with Burnaby last season.

HUGHES OUT
Missing from the Firefighters lineup will be veteran Art Hughes, who is suffering from a shoulder separation and will probably retire, and another veteran, Jim Blondel, who has not yet signed for this season. Game time is 2 p.m.

IN GOOD SHAPE
Meanwhile, Clair figures his team is in good shape for Sunday.

His only player problem concerns Canadian fullback Rick Black who is due to come off the injured list Saturday.

UBC Wins in U.S.
HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — The University of British Columbia soccer squad trounced California State at Hayward, 6-2 Thursday with a glittering offense and defense. UBC scorers were Brian Hemmingsway, Ash Veldel, Bing Smith, Gary Thompson, Ken Elmer and John Hart.

Shawnigan, Claremont Play Draws

A pair of draws was the result Thursday of two high school exhibition rugby matches between Claremont and Shawnigan Lake teams at North Saanich Junior High School.

Claremont's first team came from behind to draw, 3-3, with their Shawnigan Lake opponents, while Claremont and Shawnigan second teams battled to a scoreless draw.

An unconquered try by Pat Goodwill gave Shawnigan a 3-0 first half lead. Although Shawnigan Lake won most of the loose scrums, Claremont weight prevailed with Ted Clark beating his man and diving over for the tying try in the second half.

In the other game, Claremont and Shawnigan second squads fought an evenly played match with Claremont having the only scoring threat when Wayne Ruffie missed a penalty kick in the second half.

Finlay Has Status In Junior 'A' Nets

Victoria Cougars' Murray Finlay is closer to the leaders in the race for goal-keeping honors in the B.C. Junior Hockey League than any of his mates are to the leading scorers.

Finlay, with an average of 4.20 goals for five games, trails only Bob Belbin and Doug Thompson of the defending champion Penticton Broncos. Belbin has a brilliant 1.75 mark for four games, while Thompson has allowed 15 goals in the five games he has played.

NONE IN TOP TEN
Cougars don't have anyone in the top 10 scorers, another department topped by Penticton.

Bob Mowatt of the Broncos has 12 goals and eight assists and a three-point edge over teammate Victor Schaub and Jim Robinson of Kelowna who each have 17 points on six goals and 11 assists.

Mowatt's 12 goals are tops for the league while Jack Taggart of Penticton and Tom Servais of Vernon lead in assists with 12.

PENALTY LEADER
New Westminster's Ron Collingwood leads the league in penalties with 35 minutes of the team's 198 minutes, also tops. Statistics include games to Nov. 7 with the exception of Kamloops' 4-1 win over Vernon Nov. 1 which was protested by Vernon.

Los Angeles Drubs Leafs As Wings Win

Superstars Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks are continuing their nip-and-tuck race for NHL scoring honors.

Both came out of weekend action with 16 points, but with Detroit idle on Wednesday Hull took over sole possession of first place with an assist in Chicago's 3-2 win over Montreal.

With Hull and his mates having a night off last night, Howe overtook and passed his Chicago rival by earning two assists as Red Wings whipped Pittsburgh Penguins, 5-1.

Howe's feat shared the spotlight with the NHL debut of Roy Edwards, successor to Roger Crozier in Red Wings' nets. Crozier retired earlier this week from the "pure torture" of NHL goaltending just about the time coach Syd Abel was ready to move Edwards up anyway.

GOOD RECORD
The 30-year-old goalie, rejected by Pittsburgh earlier this season, was beaten only by Bill Speer's long screen-shot during a first period power play. Red Wings evened the count before the end of the period and added two goals in each of the second and third for the win which snapped a three-game losing streak and moved Detroit into third place in the Eastern Division.

Edwards was taken by Pittsburgh in the expansion draft last June but traded to Detroit before the season opened and out 37 Toronto shots as his Los Angeles Kings' mates toppled the Maple Leafs, 4-1, at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles jumped off to a 3-0 lead early in the second and got the only goal of the third period after Bob Purford had scored his fourth goal of the season late in the second.

Eddie Joyal scored two Los Angeles goals after defenseman Dale Rolfe and Brian Smith had started the Kings on the right road.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

The first of the winter steelhead have been taken in some Island rivers like the Stamp, the Quinsam, and the Cowichan, although these will be from the first of the runs, which usually barrel on up to the top of the rivers.

Steelheaders on the Cowichan have been using the new Anglers' Footpath on the south side of the river and some steelhead have been taken from that in the vicinity of Holt Creek.

There are some nice bright coho in the Cowichan which can provide plenty of fun for anglers. While last weekend the Cowichan was high and almost unfishable, the Nitinat dropped quickly, even to the extent of leaving some coho stranded, which kept fisheries officers busy moving them back into the main river stream.

The big pool in Stamp Falls Park in the Alberni is giving up some steelhead, if you can elbow out other anglers to find room to fish it.

There has also been some good steelheading on the Stamp in the vicinity of Money's Pool and farther up at the junction of the Stamp and the Ash. Most of them have been in the 10 and 12-pound class, but there has been one report of a 15-pounder. It is time to go after steelhead in the Gold, but blasting for road construction from the townsite to the pulp mill has made access difficult.

A small run of steelhead has gone up the Quinsam already, but they seem to have disappeared, probably in the upper reaches.

John Ebert, just back from a Hawaiian honeymoon this weekend, hasn't got around to fishing yet, but he reports other anglers are getting trout in most of the lakes in that area, particularly around Miller Creek on Lower Campbell, on bobbers and worm.

Barney Steel has been getting limit catches of trout from Dougan Lake and his antenna float, which enables him to fish with a worm at much deeper levels than with other bobbers, seems to be the answer. These special antenna floats may be purchased through Ed's Rod and Gun in Esquimalt.

Brightest outlook on the saltchuck is what appears to be another fine year of winter spring fishing. Pretty well all the favorite spring spots are reporting excellent fishing for these cold water fighters.

At Duncan Bay, north of Campbell River, anglers are taking them by spin-casting from the wharf, or from boats, with Buzz Bomb and Deadly Dicks, and they are running up to 14 and 15 pounds.

The big volume of springs and jacksprings in Saanich Inlet appear to have moved on down to the Finlayson Arm waters, but what the Brentwood area has lost in numbers it is making up in size. Alex Stewart got a limit of springs, up to 15 pounds, this week in the Tod Inlet to Willis Point waters; Bert Braidwood got three, biggest 15 pounds, in the same waters. Jim Gilbert has been getting grise and jacks up to 12 pounds in Indian Bay waters, but reports the feed is starting to thin out, although the first of the big herring arrived in Saanich Inlet this week.

In the Finlayson Arm waters Gordy Lamont limited out, biggest 17 pounds. May Hall reports best areas are around Goldstream Island and between the boathouse docks and the island. Fishing in that lower Inlet area is best it has been for some years. Wes Fulton has been getting them in the Deep Hole area.

There are some springs off Deep Cove and Dave Reddel found them between Piers Island and the Swartz Bay ferry wharf, with his catch of springs up to 10 pounds taken on purple octopus.

Dick and June James have been having good luck in Cowichan Bay this week, with coho in the 10 to 13-pound class, on Radiant flies. Best coho bite has been in the early mornings between 7 and 8:30 a.m.

Other anglers have reported good coho fishing at times along the Lambourn-Wilcooma shore, but the fish don't seem to mill around. They keep on moving right on up into the river and you have to get them while they are passing through. Cowichan Bay has been full of chum salmon, from the government wharf to Cherry Point, and Buzz Bombs are taking them.

Howard Pepper reports excellent fishing at Oak Bay and on Thursday morning he took his limit, eight to 12 1/2 pounders, around Fiddle Reef on Super Strip Teaser, 75 feet of wire line and planer.

Jack Wellburn and Art Edwards have been hitting them off Brothie Ledge and Pedder Bay has been hot. Becher Bay is also providing some good winter spring fishing and the odd coho is still being taken.

Secretary Island has been giving up lots of winter springs and Art Bailey has been hitting them off the end of Whiffen Spit.

Another bright outlook is that all fishing areas report an abundance of grise. With no herring seine fishing permitted now, the outlook is for some good coho fishing next year when these grise mature.

But, a sad note. A number of anglers have been apprehended with over-limits, especially in Saanich Inlet. These fellows are the enemies of sports anglers, because they are taking more than their share of next year's fishing. If you don't get coho next year, blame the grise hogs of this year.

First Frothbite Derby of the winter season will be held for Chinook Club members in Saanich Inlet Nov. 19, with fishing from daybreak to 2 p.m.

Jim Fulton's 17 1/2-pounder took the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association trophy for October. Dorothy Lookhart won the women's trophy with a 10.13-pounder and Johnny Gordon the junior trophy with an 11.12 spring. Hidden weight winners were G. Evans, Wyn Rusk, Frank Jenvey and Alf Lohr.

Now Frank's One Big Hero

TORONTO (CP) — Letters by the bag full are pouring into Maple Leaf Gardens.

They're meant for Frank Mahovlich, who suffered a nervous breakdown last week and the themes are all similar!

"We're with you Frank, we want you back. You're the greatest, we thought you knew."

A postcard from Vancouver reads:

"Fight, fight, fight."

FLOOD STARTS

The flood of mail started the day after Mahovlich got off the train before dawn and was taken to hospital, suffering from depression and nervous tension.

It is coming from every province of Canada and several States in the U.S.

Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of the Gardens, said:

"Frank would have to be sick for 10 years to read all his get-well wishes."

One big square envelope, in grade school writing, is addressed The Big M, Maple Leaf Gardens.

Others come from Syracuse, Buffalo, Rochester and almost every other U.S. city within range of the Leafs' television signal.

One letter from Windsor, Ont., is accompanied by a ring of beads.

"Here is the ring I made for your home suit. I'll be waiting for your goal," the letter says.

ANSWERS OUT

Ballard says he hopes the fans realize that Mahovlich will not be able to answer all the letters personally.

"As soon as the doctors say it's OK, he will be given a chance to see and read how people really feel about him," Ballard said.

"I would think it should be good therapy."

ANSWERS OUT

Ballard says he hopes the fans realize that Mahovlich will not be able to answer all the letters personally.

"As soon as the doctors say it's OK, he will be given a chance to see and read how people really feel about him," Ballard said.

Lions Keep Ron Morris

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions will retain Ron Morris as assistant coach Knap and Al Evans, head coach Jim Champion indicated Wednesday.

"Morris will be here next year," he said in an interview.

Asked about the status of Knap and Evans, Champion replied:

"I prefer to say there will be some changes. I am not firing anyone because I did not hire them."

Morris Knap and Evans were hired before the start of the 1967 season by Dave Skrien, who was fired as head coach last August and replaced by Champion.

Mom's Right Hook Staggers Referee

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Mrs. Katie Viljoen didn't agree with the referee when he disqualified her boxing schoolboy son during a Johannesburg fight.

Ducking under the ropes she staggered the referee, Naas Botes, with a crisp textbook right hook.

Her boxing son fights under the name of Peet Steyn and was named boxer of the year in South Africa. He has won the South African school title two years in a row.

Now mother and son have been banned from attending any further boxing matches under the control of the South African Boxing Association.

"I was so angry I just couldn't control myself," said the mother. "I jumped from my seat after the referee disqualified my son and gave the official a good right hook."

Mrs. Viljoen maintains she knows a thing or two about the sport—her four sons are all widely-known South African boxers.

Electrolyte Mineral Replenisher

Swigging Formula Helps Athletes

NEW YORK (CP) — You've often seen it. A sweating athlete takes a swig of water, swishes the fluid around in his mouth, and spits it out.

The somewhat sloppy custom may be on the way out in the wake of research that proves athletes who replenish the fluids and minerals lost through perspiration outperform those who don't.

Finding favor with many athletic teams now is an electrolyte mineral replenisher drink.

Taken frequently and in small doses, the drink is, in effect an "instant meal."

Dr. Gerard Balakain of Englewood, N.J., is one individual who has developed an electrolyte drink. The doctor three years ago noticed his son and other high school football players sucking oranges to quench thirst during a game and reasoned that they needed an efficient way quickly to replenish lost liquid and minerals.

The formula he developed contains salt in small amounts, a potassium compound for depleted muscle cells, dextrose and sucrose as an energy source and vitamin C to help blood clotting in case of cuts. Like the commercial product, this one is lemon-flavored. The important ingredients are the water and salts, which make possible quick absorption into the blood stream.

Controlled experiments, the doctor says, have shown the formula does what it is supposed to do—renew energy. It is not in any way a stimulant, however, the doctor emphasizes.

Liske Named West's MVP

CALGARY (CP) — Peter Liske, record-breaking quarterback with Calgary Stampede, has been awarded the Jeff Nicklin trophy as most valuable player in the Western Football Conference.

Pat Mahoney, conference president, said Liske had an "overwhelming plurality" in voting by WFC players. The vote was not given and the second- and third-placed players were not named.

Liske led Stampede to first place in the WFC this season with all-pro records of 508 pass attempts, 303 completions, 40 touchdown passes and a WFC single season record of 4,473 yards gained in the air.

Liske, 25, is a former Penn State star who went to New York Jets in 1964 and was with the AFL Buffalo Bills before going to Toronto Argonauts in 1965. Toronto traded him to Calgary after the 1965 season.

Out-standing taste is

a Schenley Tradition

What is great, anyway? How about a whisky that makes your drink taste better. How about Schenley Tradition. This friendly blend of superb whiskies isn't new. In fact, a whole generation of whisky drinkers won't settle for anything else. They think that's a Tradition worth keeping. So do we.

Cut these out of her life. Forever.

Cut these out and paste them in the family album next to that tintype of Aunt Martha's scrubbing board. This is 1967, time you started your lifetime holiday from dishes with one of today's great new automatic dishwashers.

Forget everything you've heard about dishwashers up till now: that dishes have to be pre-rinsed and loaded just so... that dishwashers can't do pots and pans. The new dishwashers do the entire job including the drying. Dishes are washed hygienically clean in water hotter than your hands can stand!

If you're still in doubt, ask one of your friends who owns a new dishwasher if she would ever go back to washing dishes by hand!

Give her a dishwasher for Christmas.

Wind Gusts Herald Mountain Snowfall

SEATTLE (AP) — Pacific windstorm that swept western Washington with gusts up to 45 miles an hour Wednesday night brought warnings Thursday of heavy snow in the Western Cascades and Olympic Mountains.

The U.S. weather bureau said there will be heavy snowfall above 4,000 feet along the west slopes of the Cascades and in the Olympics through today.

The wind Wednesday night caused scattered minor damage to utility lines and trees in the Puget Sound area.

At least a half a dozen persons were picked up at sea when their small boats ran into trouble as the windstorm began.

Opens Up Japan

OSAKA, Japan — Expense accounts make a swinging town out of drab Osaka, Japan's second city. Buyers and salesmen crowd the hotels and restaurants, cabarets and geisha tea houses.

This is an industrial city. Steel, Silks, TV sets, Japan must export. And the businessman's expense account is more than a fringe benefit. It's part of his living. The town booms with night clubs.

You sleep on the floor. But comfortably. You eat in your room — sitting on the floor at a low table. There is no hotel dining room or bar. Advantages are you get a personal maid who makes your bed, serves your food. If you are a single male, she takes you to the bath and scrubs you like a shirt. You probably haven't had this treatment since you were six.

I'd try at least one. Better get a travel agent to set this up. It's not one of those things where you walk in and ask if they have a room.

"Can we drive? Or should we use the trains?" Take the trains, they're excellent. Roads are poor. Road signs not in English. Train stations have signs in English. You may have to jump lively when you see the name you want on the platform. But at least you know where you are.

... the tipping customs? A service charge of 10 to 15 per cent is added on hotel and restaurant bills. So don't tip anybody. Exceptions are airport and railway porters — 100 yen a bag. (30 cents.)

At ryokans, you could add five per cent to the service charge and give it to the maid. Put it in a sealed envelope. Handing raw money around offends the Japanese. (She may hand it over to the owner. So you could do better to buy her a small present, gift-wrapped.)

Don't make it a handkerchief — that's a going away present to cry in.

While sipping a cool glass of Portuguese wine.

Ask for Jose or Maria. They are the owners and will make certain everything runs smoothly for you.

Q — I will be travelling constantly for the next two weeks on a business trip and have absolutely no time to have my hair set. What can I do to look presentable?

A — Surely you have time some evening. Most hotels will have a beautician stay late if you give them enough warning. However, if this is not possible pack a few crumpled hats.

My favorite is the turban. They come in all colors and prints and look quite smart. Another good style is the crocheted hat. This latter head-covering should be worn with your more casual clothes while the turban can be worn either daytime, or evening.

KAY POOL

Assists Go Go Girls

Questions — I plan to go to Europe this month and want to know if I can wear minidresses in France and Spain as well as London?

Answer — In London anything goes... granny dresses, micro minis, Zivago coats and paper pinadores, but France and Spain are more conservative.

In Paris, you might get away with a regular mini, but the French people will be quite rude if you wear your dresses the length of a shirttail. It's OK for a private party... bad waste for a stroll down the Champs Elysees.

Spain is more severe about minis. Here the man is still king and they don't like their women goggled at by every man on the street. If you want to stay out of trouble in Madrid, stick to a regular length dress for sight-seeing and nightclubbing.

Q — My girlfriend and I would like to know if it is proper to tip an airline stewardess.

A — Never! It's an insult to the stewardess. If you really appreciate the excellent service send a letter to the airline.

Q — My roommate and I are going to Nassau. What type of clothes will we need?

A — Take plenty of beach togs. In Nassau if you plan on meeting any eligible men head for Paradise Beach and stay there all day. This is where the swingers swing and happenings happen.

For evening attire take your best cocktail dress. Everyone tries to outdo each other in evening finery. Other than this include a pair of Jamaican shorts for sightseeing and one travelling ensemble. Remember, the average temperature is in the mid-70s so keep everything lightweight.

Q — I am getting married in February and we are combining a business-honeymoon trip to Lisbon. Where should we stay?

A — The most romantic place I know in Lisbon is the Hotel Principe Real. It has 24 individually decorated rooms that are all simply stunning.

The feeling here is not that of a cold, run-of-the-mill hotel, but of some fabulous enchanted cottage where your slightest wish is carried out immediately.

The lobby is handsomely set with authentic antiques, fresh flowers, comfortable lounge chairs and a warm, welcoming fireplace.

Just off the lobby there is a tiny bar that is a perfect spot for meeting other travellers.

Service Centre Bombed Again

BERKELEY, Cal. (AP) — A homemade firebomb was lobbed into the Berkeley Selective Service Centre. The bomb crashed through a plate glass window onto the floor of the unoccupied centre and set a blaze which did $2,200 damage. It was the second time in three months that the building, a block from the police station, had been bombed.

Miss Grey Cup Contest Up to Pat

Team Stands by Injured Girl

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampede said Thursday they want 20-year-old Pat Clark to be Miss Stampede in the Miss Grey Cup contest this year but have left the final decision up to her.

Miss Clark suffered facial burns in an accident a week ago and although Rogers Lelew, Stampede general manager, said she is "eager to go" she will decide by next Tuesday or Wednesday.

He said that if Miss Clark withdraws "we might have time to name an alternative... but I don't want to get that far ahead. I think she'll go but we've left it to her decision."

Miss Clark, a blonde university student, was burned last Friday when a flaming dessert dish was knocked over in a Calgary hotel and flared up in her face.

"She has some spots on her face but the redness should go in 10 days or so," Lelew said. "I don't think she'll be scarred at all although she did get some burns on the side of her face."

He discussed the situation Wednesday with Miss Clark, her parents and the chairman of the selection committee "and as far as I'm concerned she is our representative and will be our representative."

Petrified Eye Merely Rock

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Frank's petrified prehistoric "eyeball" isn't an eye at all. It turned out Thursday to be just another peculiar pebble.

"If that isn't an eye, I'll eat it," vowed the amateur archeologist as he surrendered it to a University of British Columbia scientist for examination.

"I'm afraid you'll have to have very good teeth," smiled Dr. Raymond V. Best after taking a look at the object, which Mr. Frank found while working on the W. A. C. Bennett Dam in the Peace River country in August.

Dr. Best also examined the object under a microscope, just to make sure.

"I'm absolutely positive it's not an eye—it's not even organic—but I don't blame anyone for being fooled by it."

Dr. Best said it was really a glacially-smoothed pebble consisting of quartz with a jump of feldspar in the middle.

"But it looks like an eye, is shaped like an eye and even feels like an eye," countered Mr. Frank.

"Nature sometimes throws some mighty weird curves," counselled the doctor.

Mr. Frank finally convinced, stuffed the metamorphic mineral into his pocket and left. He said he had decided against selling it and would keep it as a souvenir.

Hooks, Eyes

In Line Of Duty

WEST BROMWICH, England (AP) — All in the line of duty, Police Constable Bruce Keane was sent to keep watch on a strip club.

He ended up removing a girl's panties and powdering her thighs.

Keane, 23 and unmarried, was testifying in court against 48-year-old Benjamin Timmins, accused of staging lewd and immoral exhibitions.

The constable said he went to a club in plain clothes and a girl known as Tina Morrell arrived in bra and pants. He added:

"She moved over to the table where I was sitting, pushed her hips in my face and said, 'You're slow, aren't you?'"

"I took her panties off. I had to undo hooks and eyes. She had a G-string underneath."

After the stripping came the powdering, Keane said. The case continues, with Timmins pleading not guilty.

Accused Guilty In Knifing

A Saanich man was given a suspended sentence Thursday in central magistrate's court on a charge of causing bodily harm.

George Evans of 628 Brookleigh was found guilty of wounding Conradus Boudewyn of 5196 Rambler in a family argument at the Brookleigh residence October 8.

In the first court appearance on the charge, Boudewyn was sentenced to two months in jail for contempt of court when he refused to give evidence for the Crown.

DOMESTIC GLASS
Magistrate William Ostler found Evans guilty of the assault with a paring knife, which occurred during a scuffle between the two men, arising from domestic difficulty.

In addition to the suspended sentence, Evans was placed on his own recognizance for six months in the amount of $250.

Joseph Cipric, 39, no fixed address, was sentenced to two months in jail for committing an indecent act.

The evidence showed Cipric had exposed himself to a theatre usherette November 7. The Crown told court Cipric, who had come from Edmonton three weeks ago, had been convicted in Toronto in 1958 on the same charge, and had served three years for a robbery conviction in 1961.

Richard G. Powell, 20, of 2515 Wark was fined $15 each on charges of being intoxicated and being a minor in possession of liquor.

The evidence showed he had been arrested just after midnight Wednesday on Yates Street.

David Mayoh, 40, of 1612 Richmond, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended when found guilty of impaired driving.

He was arrested about 1 p.m. October 31 by Colwood RCMP after he was observed driving erratically on Sooke Road in the Colwood area.

Study Help

A $500 bursary offered by the B.C. and Yukon division of the Canadian Cancer Society has been won by Victoria student Matti Vailhovi of 210 Langholm Drive. Mr. Vailhovi, 21, is in his first year of medical studies at the University of British Columbia, following three years at the University of Victoria.

Lost Bars Delay Testing

An experiment on corrosion resistance will probably have to be started again, because of the loss of 14 bars of aluminum, according to Technical Officer Ray Buckett of the Defence Research Establishment Pacific.

The bars, immersed last February off a jolly at the entrance to Esquimalt Harbour, were missing when a check was made in late August.

REWARD OFFERED

A $50 reward has been offered for the return of the bars, which Mr. Buckett had hoped might be found washed up on a beach.

"I don't have much hope that the bars will be returned," Mr. Buckett said Thursday. "The loss will put the program back about two years."

The bars of various alloys were in a ceramic rack, which was tied to the wharf, and navy divers had searched the sea bottom in the area without success.

Tax Agreement Made On Court Building

Although there has been no decision made on whether the regional district will or should pay taxes on property it owns, an agreement has been arrived at on payment of taxes for the new Family and Children's Court building.

Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay, Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich and Reeve Ray Bryant of Esquimalt agreed at a regional board meeting Wednesday that their municipalities would share the $4,000 tax bill for the new courthouse now under construction in Victoria.

Reeve Cox suggested the "gentlemen's agreement" after Mayor Hugh Stephen sought endorsement of a resolution making it possible for municipalities to tax regional board property.

Regional board directors agreed generally with the principle that taxes should be paid, but wanted to explore the ramifications of the problem before making a final decision.

Columbia Payment Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is still to approve a public works bill which contains authorization to pay B.C. $12,000,000 owing it under the Columbia River agreement.

U.S. Congress passed the compromise $4,700,000,000 measure Thursday and in the process, denied money for the Dickey Lincoln hydro project in northern Maine for another year.

The Senate, which previously had voted to provide $875,000 for final planning of the massive project on the St. John River, dropped its fight after the House of Representatives voted earlier in the day against providing any money for the development.

It was the third time this year the House had voted against the project.

Everybody Puzzled

Farmer Richard Cummings is puzzled man. He found this 23-inch stainless steel spheroid while hunting wolves near his home about 10 miles north-east of Conway, Ark. He has no idea what it is. But then neither has U.S. Air Force, Weather Bureau nor state Civil Defence Agency. Nylon string he is holding apparently joins clamp or spring inside object. It weighs about seven pounds and has circumference of about six feet. — (AP)

Rosy Forecast Replaces Restraint

Canada, B.C. Places to Invest Bonner Tells Californians

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO—B.C. cabinet ministers stopped talking restraint and inflation here long enough Thursday to paint a rosy picture of unparalleled future growth for the province.

The pitch, by four ministers and a group of B.C. businessmen, was designed to encourage more Californian investment in the province and promote the sale of B.C.-made goods throughout the western U.S.

NEW GROWTH

Attorney-General Bonner brought to light some startling new growth predictions in his address to the B.C.-California trade seminar. He gave these figures which he said represent a modest estimate of the province's growth "by 1979 or 1980."

B.C. will grow by twice the present population of the city of Vancouver to between 2,700,000 and 2,800,000. The present population is just nudging 2,000,000.

MATCHING 1966

New capital investment, which this year will be about $2,500,000,000, matching 1966, must rise to $6,000,000,000 or $7,000,000,000 during the period in order to keep the present thrust in the provincial economy.

The gross provincial product, representing the total value of all goods and services produced in B.C., will rise from the present $5,200,000,000 to at least $15,000,000,000 and possibly as high as $18,000,000,000, by 1980.

MAGIC QUALITY

"California has always had a magic quality," Bonner told the seminar sponsored by San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the World Trade Association. "It is the golden state, the place where all people feel the American dream might be realized."

The attorney-general added, "In some respects, though perhaps in more muted tones, the same thing is happening in B.C. In the case of both British Columbia and California, this is where the action is."

WELL ADVISED

Bonner said if he was only half right in his predictions, California and other U.S. business would be well advised to study opportunities available to them in Canada.

"If you are looking abroad there is no other place you can look with greater expectation of stability and success in business," Bonner said.

"I would rate Canada No. 1 and B.C. A-1."

Bonner said, the gross national product for Canada will grow from the current figure of approximately $62,000,000,000 to somewhere between $120,000,000,000 and $150,000,000,000 by 1980.

SOME CHANGES

He said the provincial growth figures were based upon findings of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics with some modifications based upon provincial experience.

Some concern was expressed by those taking part in the seminar over what one speaker called the rising tide of protectionist sentiment in the U.S. The attempt by some sections of the U.S. Congress to establish a system of import quotas is intended to offset the liberalizing of the Canada-U.S. trade under the Kennedy Round tariff reductions.

David Fellman, Canadian specialist with the U.S. commerce department in Washington, told the seminar President Johnson had recently made a strong statement against quota imposition but the swing to protectionism continues.

However, Fellman said, time may be on the side of the administration because the present Congress is drawing to a close and proposed quotas may have to be put over until a new session starts.

LOWER YET

Trade Minister Lofmark said B.C. wants still lower tariffs in U.S.-Canada trade. These should apply particularly to sophisticated manufacturing equipment imported from the U.S. and B.C. wood and agricultural products and petrochemicals going to the U.S.

This Lofmark said, would give California and B.C. new confidence in each other.

If Butchers Strike One Chain

Six Will Close Doors

Six B.C. supermarket chains (Amalgamated Meat Cutters' Union) said Thursday they will close all their stores if any one of the companies is struck by the Aubrey Roberts, secretary of an employers' committee negotiating for Super-Valu, Safeway, Shop Easy, Dominion, Loblaw and High-Low stores, issued the warning.

George Johnston, business manager of the union, after hearing the employers' statement, accused the stores of a "customer-be-damned" attitude.

Mr. Roberts said the union, which is seeking a four-day, 36-hour work week and pay raises ranging between $1 and $1.45 an hour, has publicly stated that only a part of the retail food industry would be affected if the union proceeded with strike action.

"Consumers will never believe that the union is really doing this as a favor to them," Mr. Roberts said. "The real reason for the move would be to force one or more of the employers to agree to the union's unreasonable wage demands and restrictive clauses and later force the same conditions on other employers."

"If a strike becomes inevitable," Mr. Johnston said, "it will be the unions' intention to keep the inconvenience to an absolute minimum."

"If we strike on a limited or selective basis, it will be with this thought in mind."

Progress Warning Given by Teacher

Two opposite trends in education have to be reconciled, B.C. Teachers' Federation president Robert Buzza said in Victoria Thursday.

There is increasing freedom at the local level, and at the same time a trend toward big-government intervention in education, Mr. Buzza said.

The problem is how to keep the benefits of centralization without letting it smother progress, said the elected head of about 18,000 teachers.

Mr. Buzza, a Burnaby elementary school principal now on a year's leave of absence, made a brief stop in Victoria to attend a university awards ceremony.

"We have the best-trained teaching force in Canada," he said. "They have more opportunity for individual responsibility in the classroom than ever before."

The other trend is what we are seeing in Quebec and New Brunswick," he added, referring to massive government take-overs of education at the local level. In New Brunswick, school trustees have been abolished.

"I would leave teaching rather than live under a single provincial system," he vowed.

But he added, consolidation of some rural districts could bring benefits to students with the improved staffing and facilities of larger secondary schools.

BRIGHT PEOPLE

Mr. Buzza said that bright young people are being attracted to teaching nowadays. B.C. demands the highest level of education for teachers of any Canadian province.

Mr. Buzza issued a call for elimination of departmental exams "for a number of reasons."

Teachers are forced to teach for the exam, not broadly and creatively, he said.

"Also, many of the things we are trying to teach young people can't be tested in a paper-and-pencil exam."

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Foreign language instruction and laboratory work are examples, Mr. Buzza said.

"For another thing, a departmental exam doesn't give the student a chance to see where he went wrong and build from there."

"It's like grading eggs."

Viets' Status Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — South Vietnamese students training in Canada under this country's foreign aid program receive living allowances of $165 to $300 a month, the Commons external affairs committee was told Thursday.

Maurice Strong, director of the external aid office, said the living allowance does not include other allowances for medical expenses, clothing and books.

Average cost to Canada for each of the 211 Vietnamese students now in this country was $3,300 a year, DODGERS?

Mr. Strong also dealt with statements by Dr. Michael Hall of Toronto, former Canadian medical adviser in Vietnam to the external aid office, that many Vietnamese students in Canada are draft dodgers who never return home.

Mr. Strong said that of 386 Vietnamese so far trained in Canada, three have been allowed to stay here. He did not say how many might have gone to other countries.

He said the students are selected by the Vietnamese education ministry and that they must clarify their military status in Vietnam before coming to Canada.

HIGH STANDARD

Wallace Nesbitt (PC-Oxford) said he has been told by senior university officials that many of the Vietnamese students are the children of wealthy and politically influential persons in Vietnam.

Mr. Strong said their academic records are among the highest in Canadian universities.

Dealing with other criticisms raised by Dr. Hall, Mr. Strong said several times that the doctor's complaints had been taken seriously and many of them had been implemented.

IMPLEMENTED

"I am not trying to pass judgment... nor am I trying to suggest that I am in disagreement," he said at one point.

Later he said that many of Dr. Hall's experiences had given rise to "significant changes" in Canadian aid programs.

Judicial Hearing in Alberta

Document Threat to City Expansion

EDMONTON (CP) — Geoff Hamilton of Calgary, a former Edmonton city commissioner, testified Thursday that he turned over to Premier Manning a document in which welfare Minister A. J. Hooke claimed compensation for alleged injustices in the city's dealings with Ideal Homes Ltd.

Mr. Hamilton told a judicial inquiry he gave his copy of the 18-page unsigned memorandum to the premier shortly before leaving the commissioner's post March 30, 1966.

He said he received the document Nov. 8, 1962, from Aid.

came from Mr. Hooke, then minister of municipal affairs.

A few days later, the three commissioners, the mayor and the city solicitor had discussed whether to go to the premier about the memorandum.

"We didn't know... whether we were looking at something that could almost be called blackmail or not."

Mr. Hamilton said they decided not to consult Mr. Manning at the time.

The testimony was given at a judicial inquiry into allegations that Mr. Hooke and E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer, used or attempted to use their public offices for personal gain. The allegations were made in the last session of the legislature by Garth Turcott, former New Democratic Party member for Pincher Creek-Crownest.

NOT GLAD

NDP counsel Gordon Wright asked how Mr. Manning reacted to the memorandum.

"I can't say that he was glad to receive it," Mr. Hamilton said.

"This exchange followed: 'Why did you complain to the premier?'"

"It seemed to me that the transmission of that particular document to me, in that fashion, was a kind of irregularity."

DEVELOPER'S VISIT

Mr. Hamilton said the memorandum made no mention, directly or indirectly, of the city's application to annex land including the town of Jasper Place and an industrial strip in the county of Strathcona, east of the city.

But he testified that John Campbell, a land developer associated with Mr. Hooke, came to his house in late winter or early spring of 1962-63 and told him "you can forget all about your annexation" if the Ideal Homes claim was not satisfactorily settled.

Canada, Netherlands Disagree

Air Pact Lands in Trouble

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Premier Piet de Jong reported to Parliament today on the Dutch government's decision to end its current aviation agreement with Canada.

The decision, which still requires parliamentary approval, followed the failure of The Netherlands to obtain landing rights at Toronto for KLM, Royal Dutch Airlines. KLM has landing rights at Montreal only.

The premier made his report in a letter, in which the state secretary for transport and foreign affairs, J. Keltzer and H. P. J. Koster, said Canada rejected a "moderate and reasonable" adaptation of the agreement to present-day demands of international air transport.

They said that as a result the government no longer regards the agreement as a sound basis for the balanced development of the reciprocal air services—KLM and Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The state secretaries said the government is confident, however, that before the announcement has legal consequences, agreement will be reached on a new aviation agreement.

They noted that the Canadian company links Amsterdam directly with five Canadian cities—Calgary, Edmonton, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Transport Minister Hellyer told the Commons earlier this week that if new negotiations with the Dutch government are required they would be conducted in a spirit of co-operation.

Canada now has landing rights at only one point in Holland—Amsterdam. It has not asked for any additional point.

'Quebec MP Broke Oath' —Thompson

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson (SC—Red Deer) Thursday accused separatist Gilles Gregoire (Ind—Lapointe) in the Commons of breaking his oath of allegiance to the queen and Canada.

Mr. Gregoire demanded that Mr. Thompson withdraw his accusation.

Mr. Thompson, one-time Social Credit associate of Mr. Gregoire, declined to do so and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said he would make a ruling later.

OATH DEFIED

Mr. Thompson said Mr. Gregoire has defied the oath taken by every MP and asked Prime Minister Pearson what he plans to do about it. Mr. Gregoire was immediately on his feet and, even if Mr. Pearson had wanted

MONEY DIG

Transport Minister Hellyer told Mr. Gregoire later that he should have raised money in France to help Canada keep the St. Lawrence River open this winter.

In reply to a question by the Quebec MP, Mr. Hellyer said ice-breaking will be carried out on the St. Lawrence to the extent necessary to prevent flooding.

Mr. Gregoire then asked about winter navigation, but Mr. Lamoureux ruled the question was too general.

RISES AGAIN

Mr. Hellyer rose again however, to say: "I just thought, Mr. Speaker, that if the member had raised enough money in France to build another ice-breaker, we could do a better job."

He sat down to the unfamiliar sound of enthusiastic desk-thumping on both sides of the House.

Bail System Defended By Toronto Attorney

OTTAWA (CP) — Criminal Code provisions for bail do not need revision, Crown Attorney Henry Bull of Toronto said Thursday.

"The evils which exist in the Canadian bail system are abuses of administration and not a fault of the law," he told the Commons standing committee on justice.

When Eugene Whelan (L—Essex South) asked which officials were at fault in administration, the Metropolitan Toronto prosecutor replied: "Mea culpa, mea culpa, mea maxima culpa. I'm guilty myself."

"I think the officials include anyone who has anything to do with bail—crown attorneys, police, magistrates."

A private bill to amend the Criminal Code bail provisions is now before the committee. Sponsor Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) says it would emphasize release without bond. Mr. Bull said the Mather bill would be premature because several studies of the bail system are under way. The work would be wasted if the Mather bill was passed.

LONDON (UPI) — Investigators Thursday announced discovery of a fighter-type fuel tank near the Mediterranean crash scene.

Comet jetliner crash, reviewing theories of a collision possibly with a Russian MIG.

The Comet dove into the sea off Turkey Oct. 12, on a flight from London to Cyprus, killing all 66 persons aboard, British European Airways, the owners, called it an extraordinary crash.

HAD TIME

The plane was nearly four miles high. The pilot had time to warn passengers to put on lifejackets but failed to radio an SOS. One theory at the time of the crash was that another plane had sliced off the radio aerials.

The board of trade accident investigation branch, conducting the official investigation, said a military jettable fuel tank was recovered about 10 to 15 miles east of the Greek island of Rhodes and was being brought to Britain for further examination in connection with the inquiry.

Experts will try to determine the fuel tank's source.

FIGHTER CLUES

Such a tank could be carried by fighter aircraft on long-distance journeys, and sources said it might have been a Russian MIG being ferried from the Soviet Union to the U.A.R. Western nations denied any of their fighters were missing or involved in the Comet crash.

The Comet sank in deep water about 100 miles east of Rhodes. The depth complicated the inquiry because the only wreckage which could be examined by the investigators was the floatsam picked up by rescue ships.

Police Injured In Red Raids

HONG KONG (AP) — Police shot and killed two Chinese men Wednesday night during a Communist terrorist bombing that wounded seven police and 32 others at a crowded intersection in this British colony.

One policeman was reported near dead and a teen-aged boy was in critical condition. The others were taken to hospital with less serious injuries.

Honey For Asking

Is there a child that wants to learn about the honey bee . . . or 80,000 of them?

Dave Lichtensteiger, 1836 Feltham, is thinking of organizing a 4-H bee club, sponsored by the British Columbia Honey Producers' Association, Vancouver Island division.

There are 97 members of the association on the Saanich Peninsula, each with two to 50 colonies.

The 4-Hers will have to establish their colonies and maintain them from around April 1 to the end of August, when the honey is removed.

This may surprise you, but practically all of those top-selling Canadian whiskies that call themselves "rye" are mostly made from corn. It's a shame, because an all-rye whisky is delightfully different. It's clean and clear and gentle, as only a real rye can be. Corn up a good whisky like Alberta Premium? Never!

Heat exchanger built by VMD

Oil Refinery Equipment

$700,000 Deal Lift for VMD

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Harold Husband, president of VMD, said he was "greatly encouraged" by an order for $700,000 the Victoria firm received Thursday from Imperial Oil.

VMD will supply the principal process equipment to be installed in a balanced conversion and expansion program at Imperial's Montreal refinery, for which Arthur G. McKee of Cleveland, Ohio, and Toronto, are the prime contractors.

The equipment includes seven of the very high pressure heat exchangers and one high pressure separator for which VMD has become famous in the oil industry.

"This is a very competitive business, and we are very pleased to have won the contract in the face of U.S. and Eastern Canadian opposition," said Mr. Husband.

"When it is considered that the steel and other materials have to be shipped to us from the east, and then the finished product returned to Montreal, the winning of this contract becomes quite a feat and a tribute to VMD skill and efficiency."

The exchangers will be made of fabricated chrome-molybdenum steel alloys and they will operate under 3,000 pounds per square inch pressure at heats up to 800 degrees.

Mr. Husband said VMD is the first and only Canadian firm fabricating units of this type.

Last month, VMD announced that it was closing at the end of the year its shipbuilding and ship-repairing operations at Dallas Road, but indicated that it hoped to extend its operations at the Bay Street plant, where the firm specializes in engineering work for many Canadian industries.

Skippers Fined $1,000

The captains of four salmon seiners were fined $1,000 each in district magistrate's court here Thursday for violation of a British Columbia fisheries regulation.

Through counsel, the captains of the New Queen, Oamano Sound, Miss Helen and Laredo pleaded guilty to the charges. They all are from the Vancouver area.

Court was told that they were unlawfully fishing last Aug. 14 on the westward side of a surf-line, an imaginary boundary that runs across the westerly entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait.

They were spotted on a patrol vessel's radar in dense fog.

Hang-Up Over

It took combined efforts of Victoria fire department and SPCA, Thursday, to rescue seagull hanging by leg from utility wires on View Street east of Cook. In response to deluge of telephone calls from people who spotted gull's plight fire department dispatched 10 men and ladder truck, and SPCA sent out man and truck. Gull was taken to SPCA headquarters and later released by SPCA official D. H. Beeching.

Students' Walk

Blisters Ahead In Good Cause

Several thousand people may be walking briskly up the centre of Douglas Street on November 25.

It will be "Project 100," an enterprise supported Thursday at a meeting of city council.

Alderman Robert Baird described it as the Centennial project of students of the district. It will be a 25-mile walk which will start at the Legislative Buildings and make as many circles of the Greater Victoria area as are needed to make up the 25 miles.

MOBILE CLASSROOMS

The idea is to raise money for mobile classrooms for use in Malaysia, Africa and other underdeveloped parts of the Commonwealth.

Each walker will try to find a sponsor who will pay for him for every mile accomplished, the money to be turned over to the student fund.

Such walks have been held in other cities, and in Victoria on a smaller scale, and have been a great success, the alderman said.

'CARDIAC MILE'

Mayor Hugh Stephen and a number of aldermen said they would walk the first "cardiac mile," and finance other walkers.

"I am sponsoring a young lad and I am paying him $2 a mile," the mayor said. "He will probably make the whole distance, too. I stand to be out $50 on this deal."

Alderman Baird said he, too, had chosen his walker.

There will be blister stops along the way.

"What about a brandy checkpoint?" asked the mayor.

Formosan Oranges Keep Price

Formosan Mandarin oranges will go on sale in city stores today, at much the same prices as last year.

The oranges, which arrived in Vancouver from Formosa aboard the Ss. Washington, will sell for about 29 cents a pound in city outlets.

Shipments from Japan for the Christmas season will arrive about the end of the month, and it is not yet known what the price will be.

Soaring Costs of Library 'Too Shocking for Words'

By A. H. MURPHY

Soaring library costs, projected over the next four years in a recent report, were "too shocking for words," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow told a meeting of city council Thursday.

"This is the first report since the four municipalities (Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, amalgamated to operate the library, and I was very much concerned when I saw the report. In fact, I asked the librarian, John Lort, to give me a further statement," said Alderman Lily Wilson, who is city council's representative on the board.

MORE BRANCHES

The report, submitted late in October, envisaged the opening of three more branches in Esquimalt, Oak Bay and the Mount Tolmie area, and projected costs.

It would cost $647,000 ($4.27 per capita to operate the library in 1968; $725,000 (4.85) in 1969; $810,000 ($5.41) in 1970 and $850,000 ($6.38) in 1971, the report stated.

'TIME TO CUT DOWN'

"It is now $3.50 per capita and it goes up to $6.75 before it is done," said Alderman Edgelow. "When you consider that one of the big reasons this amalgamation was put into effect was to save money, it is obviously time for the library board to cut down. We're going to have to ask them to do something."

Ald. Edgelow said he conveyed the concern of the mayor and members of council to Mr. Lort and asked for an interview. The mayor suggested that he work with Alderman Wilson and bring a report back to city council.

MORE PROTESTS

Strong protests against rising library costs have been made in Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

In Oak Bay on Monday, Councilor J. D. Watts said he realized that the services were necessary, but that he felt the board should take a sharp pencil to its estimates.

COMPLETE FORMULA

After years of intermunicipal wrangling and argument about costs, the four municipalities got together in 1966 and agreed on a complex formula, based mostly on book usage, for sharing library costs.

At the time T. P. O'Grady, Victoria's city solicitor, warned that the argument was so tenuous that the refusal of one of the participants to assume its share of cost would destroy the whole agreement.

Red Date Saturday

The Victoria branch of the Communist Party of Canada will welcome friends and supporters at a social at Williams Hall, 749 Broughton Street, starting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday to celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the formation of Communism.

Libraries Close

The Greater Victoria Public Library, the Town and Country branch library, and the library station at Brentwood will observe the Remembrance Day holiday Saturday, and will open again Monday.

Mrs. Scurrah in 1912 gown with museum official Carolyn Case

Scurrah Dresses Given to Museum

By MARK DICKINSON

The ex-mayor's wife donned the dress she wore to a 1912 policeman's ball, showed it off briefly on her front porch, and then handed that and scores of other gowns and hats to the Provincial Museum.

Mrs. Percy Scurrah's gift will be kept together as The Mabel Scurrah Collection of Outstanding Dresses and Hats. There are about 50 of each.

"I had been saving them for years," Mrs. Scurrah said Thursday.

"They are very beautiful gowns that I wore from time to time."

She said the oldest was a gown that she wore when she attended a B.C. Provincial Policemen's ball with her husband in Victoria in 1912.

All of the dresses came from her husband's store, Scurrah's Limited, that the former mayor operated for 50 years. He retired a few years ago.

"I just put them all to one side and kept them — not meaning to wear them again. But I thought that they might go to some good use," Mrs. Scurrah said.

About a year and a half ago, provincial archivist William Ireland told her they would "go well" in the museum, where there were several dresses from the 1800s but only a few from this century.

"They would have to go to someone responsible before I gave them up," she said. "You can't replace them."

Mr. Scurrah was mayor from 1954 to 1961.

Christmas Seal Envelopes Invite Aid in War on TB

Envelopes of Christmas seals, from the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society, will arrive in 35,000 Greater Victoria letter boxes today.

The organization hopes to raise $35,000 of its $360,000 B.C. objective in this area.

The money is used to detect and treat tuberculosis and other chest disorders. Last year, the TB-Christmas Seal Society had a mass chest X-ray program here.

This year's seal bears the design of a Christmas stylized after the Centennial maple leaf. With the sheet of seals is a pre-addressed envelope in which "we'd like any donation from 25 cents to $25," said a Society spokesman.

Maloney-Ware*California Honeymoon

Doris Mariens Ware wore her grandmother's diamond engagement ring as a "something old" when she became the bride of Michael James Maloney in St. Patrick's Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin gown and coat, en train and styled on empire lines. Lace appliques trimmed the sleeves and bodice of the coat and edged the full cathedral train. A satin headpiece held her tiered veil of silk illusion which was studded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Father A. E. Leonard heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Ware, 2421 Mount Street and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Maloney, 838 Maddison Street.

Gold and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church for the ceremony.

The bride's attendants wore matching gowns of pale turquoise chiffon over tulle featuring daisy lace bodices. Miss Cheryl Coy was maid of honor, Mrs. Andrea Bellegarde was bridesmatron and Miss Susan Maloney, bridesmaid.

Dennis Whitehead was best man and Steven Maloney and Keith Aldridge ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Carlton Club, a three-tier wedding cake topped with lemon tea roses, centred the head table. Howard Blake proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to southern California the bride chose a mocha suede dress and coat ensemble trimmed with a mink collar and teamed with mink-tipped accessories. On their return to Victoria the newlyweds will make their home in the Casa Del Mar Apartments.

Following their wedding in Metropolitan United Church Mr. and Mrs. David Stephen Matheson Pike left on a honeymoon trip to Portland, Ore. On their return they will make their home in the Lady Simcoe Apartments.

The bride, the former Darleen Lynda Doersam, chose a gown of norganza encased in nylon sheer and styled on A-lines with sleeves softly belled at the wrist and edged with appliques of Alencon lace. A tiny norganza boy headpiece held a cathedral train of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of a calysa orchid, centred in stephanotis. For luck, she wore a sixpence in her shoe.

Rev. A. E. King officiated at the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard N. Doersam, 3405 Diana Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pike of Traytown, Nfld. Mr. Doersam gave his daughter in marriage.

Standards of fall-toned chrysanthemums were at the altar and rust chrysanthemums and ribbons marked the pews. Eric Boothroyd was organist, accompanying Miss Joan Oswald who sang "The Wedding Prayer".

Miss Maureen Doersam was maid of honor and Miss Laurel Doersam, junior bridesmaid, for their sister, The Misses Jean Morris and Jean Calderwood were also bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of coral peau d'elephant, styled on

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who needs advice from an older person. The problem is my grandmother. I am staying with her for a month because my folks had to go to another city on business.

I always thought Grandma was the greatest until last week. This is what happened:

Grandma works in a hospital. I noticed that whenever she came home from work she always took her shopping bag to the back of the house. She did it in a way that made me think she was hiding something. Yesterday the phone rang just as Gram was coming in. She said, "I'll answer it," and put her shopping bag on the chair. I couldn't help seeing what was in it. Grandma has been taking bedsheets, pillowcases, washclothes, soap and all sorts of odds and ends from the hospital. Now I know why she gives linens and towels for Christmas and birthdays and weddings. I am just sick about this. Should I tell anyone? If so, whom? — DISAPPOINTED

Dear Disappointed: Tell your grandmother that she must have gotten some of the hospital property mixed in with hers when she packed her shopping bag. To circulate the information around the family would serve no useful purpose. Grandma is the only one who needs to know that you are on to her.

Dear Ann Landers: I am interested in the letter from the man who operates the coin laundry. He said it was a disgrace the way women come in after supper, weary, often pregnant, dragging their bundles, and sometimes a child or two. Where are the husbands? At the ball game or drinking beer in front of the TV. He made it sound pretty grim. Ann, and I'm sure he was speaking for many women across the land. But he wasn't speaking for ME.

My husband offered to buy me an automatic washer three times last year but I said no. Going to the coin laundry is my only chance to get out of the house alone.

Two evenings a week my husband does the supper dishes and puts the kids to bed. I take my knitting and a good book and off I go to the coin laundry. It's the most relaxing part of my whole week. I wouldn't give it up for anything. — K.C. ANN FAYN

Dear K.C.: Thanks for writing. Your letter is proof that nobody can speak for everybody.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who has been dating for about six months. I am allowed to go out on Friday and Saturday evenings. My curfew is midnight and I am permitted to invite my date in for 45 minutes.

It sounds good, but wait till you hear the rest. My 11-year-old brother has instructions that whenever I come home from a date he is supposed to join us in the living room while we visit. Most of the time he is dead tired and hates to be bothered, but Dad wakes him up out of a sound sleep and tells him he has to.

Am I wrong to resent this? When I complained to my folks they said a 16-year-old girl should not be saying anything to her boyfriend that her brother shouldn't hear. What do you say? — M. BARRIST

Wife Believes In Miracles

MONTREAL (CP) — When her husband was saved from execution in Nigeria with seconds to spare, Nancy Craig became a modern young woman believing in miracles. She learned her husband David, a missionary in Nigeria, was saved by a "real miracle" from a firing squad in the city of Calabar in the troubled Biafra section of that African country.

The squad was awaiting orders to shoot when a Nigerian colonel's batman appeared with instructions to halt execution of the missionary, mistaken for a mercenary soldier.

Mrs. Craig, a native of Lennoxville, Quebec, staying with Montreal friends, said in an interview:

"His being saved is a real miracle. If that batman hadn't arrived at just that second, David wouldn't be alive today."

"More than ever I'm convinced that God really takes care of his children. He saved David's life."

Mrs. Craig had been with her husband in Calabar until July when it became dangerous for her to stay. Biafra seceded from the Federation of Nigeria in March and fighting broke out.

"Two weeks ago I heard that 14,000 Nigerian troops had arrived in Calabar and I just knew David didn't have a chance," she said.

"Unless a miracle happened I wouldn't see him again."

Mrs. Craig had stayed in Calabar, where she was a teacher and her husband a chaplain, as long as she could. She returned to Montreal via Lagos and Switzerland.

Letters from her husband were sporadic during this time. He had to smuggle them out through The Cameroons.

Jacque Feeds Elephants

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy toured the ornate royal palace of Cambodia Tuesday. Then, standing under a gilded parasol in the tropical sun, gingerly fed bananas and sugar cane to two sacred elephants.

Escorted by ruling Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the widow of President Kennedy paid a courtesy visit to the prince's mother Sisowath Kossamak who is a "symbol of monarchy" in this nation's complicated court etiquette.

It's buffable. The best all-floor buffable liquid wax on the market. With a shine that is every bit as deep as that of the finest paste wax, a shine that outlasts paste wax and you can damp-mop it and re-buff it over and over again.

How's that for an easy-to-use liquid wax? And it works on any floor, be it wood, tile, cork or linoleum.

We must mention here that it costs more than ordinary waxes. We don't think you'll mind because you'll save in the long run — on money and work.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Tom Wolfe, vice-president in charge of news for ABC, decided in 1964 that a special on VD was too hot to show. He was overruled by the efforts of Jesse Zimmerman, who ran ABC news day to day, and the show went public and critical acclaim.

Zimmerman died in the Tokyo plane crash that also took the life of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel's Norma MacDonald. Now, Wolfe has shelved a red-hot, $150,000 special on narcotics — and there's no Zimmerman to say no.

The show was ordered by ABC president Leonard Goldenson and strayed from its original topic, young addicts, to include everything from a rooftop shoot-out to LSD sessions, a pot party and the dope-lighting clinic at Lexington, Ky. Keep hoping — Channel 9 may get it one day.

BUREAU OF USE-LESS INFORMATION: Thursday's thrilling answer — B.C. produced Raymond Burr of New Westminster, former Shawinigan Lake teacher James Robertson, Justice, Penitentiary's Alex Smith, Yvonne DeCarlo and Alan Young of Vancouver and a Victoria-raised John Ireland.

There being a holiday Saturday, today's question will not be answered until Tuesday. In the favorite movie of my childhood, Errol Flynn's 1938 Adventures of Robin Hood, who played Maid Marian, Little John, King John, King Richard, Friar Tuck, the villainous Sir Guy of Gisborne and two tough ones, the Sheriff of Nottingham and Will Scarlett. And who composed the music?

Garden Notes

Trees for Bare Lot

By M. V. CHESNUT

One of the disadvantages of buying a new home as against an old one is the fact that the lot is almost sure to be treeless; the speculative builder seems to take a delight in bulldozing all the trees off his development, probably so he can get a clear run at the building operations. Against the freshness and modernity of the new home, the new owner must start from scratch to landscape his property.

Trees of some sort are a must, of course, but selecting suitable trees for a small lot isn't easy. The less space there is available, the more carefully the tree must be chosen.

And here, perhaps, the builder has shown good judgment in clearing the tract, for our native trees are seldom the right dimensions for a restricted space.

Yesterday I gave you the names and descriptions of some smallish trees suitable for specimen planting in the lawn or elsewhere in a small garden; today I would like to carry on and describe a few more.

I think my own favorites among the small trees are the flowering crab-apples — the ornamental kinds, grown for their blossoms and foliage effects rather than for their fruit, the range of varieties available nowadays is as great, if not greater, than in the Japanese flowering cherries.

One group alone of ornamental crabs — the Rosyblossoms — offers over twenty different varieties, all developed originally from a wild crabapple found growing in the Tan Shan mountains which divide Russian Turkestan from Western China. One of these, the Almey Rosyblossom crab, was selected as Canada's Centennial tree.

Almey is a vigorous tree growing to about 15 feet in height, with strong, spreading branches and a nicely rounded top.

The leaves are purplish red when they first unfold, later turning green with a bronzy cast.

The blossoms are borne profusely, with five to seven blossoms in each cluster, deep carmine in the bud stage, opening to a good clear red.

A white marking at the base of each petal gives the effect of a five-pointed star in the heart of each blossom.

Royalty is another Rosyblossom crab with purple foliage and pink blossoms. Sutherland has dark reddish-bronze leaves, bright red blossoms and small dark red fruits which hang on nearly all winter, attracting many birds.

Strathmore has an upright, columnar form rather like a miniature Lombardy poplar, with slender branches, reddish foliage and red blossoms.

Hard to find but a real gem for the small garden is the ornamental crab-apple Malus ionensis flore plena, usually sold under the name Bechtel's Crab.

This one puts on height at a small's pace and is unlikely to grow more than 15 feet tall even after 20 years. The blossoms are fully double, like tiny pink roses, and are sweetly fragrant.

Red Jade is a semi-weeping crab blooming in apple-blossom pink and a real delight in early winter, for each pendant branch is bedecked with hundreds of tiny bright red fruits.

Malus floribunda hillieri, a 12-foot late-flowering crab, blooms so profusely that you can't see the branches through its cloud of pink semi-double blossoms.

An English-bred crab, Malus purpurea aldenhamensis, has purple-tinted leaves that deepen in color with the onset of autumn, and a Chinese crabapple, Malus yunnanensis, dies royally in scarlet and gold, leaving a vast number of tiny scarlet fruits which keep the birds well occupied well into the winter.

None of the ornamental crabs bear fruits large enough to attract small boys. Boys, I might mention, are the most persistent and destructive pest of the edible crabapple tree!

ERMA BOMBECK Makes Her TV Debut

'I'm a Star—I Belong Here'

The question haunted me for nearly a week. "Could a simple, suburban housewife with reggie cuticles and flabby upper arms find happiness on America's most sophisticated night-time marathon, the Johnny Carson show?"

Here, for the first time anywhere in an uncorrupted report on what goes on in Studio 6-B as seen through the eyes of a simple, average housewife turned chicken!

"The secret of success," said my agent, "is to say to yourself, 'I'm a star. I belong here.''" "I'm a star. I belong here," I said mechanically.

"Great," he said, "now come out of the elevator and stop crouching in the corner with your hands over your ears. After the interview I'll buy you a drink, okay?"

The interviewer was one of four who screen applicants for the show. Her job was to find what Johnny Carson and I had in common to talk about.

Actually, we got it down to two similarities: we both own Yorkshire terriers and we both cough a lot.

The next step was to make me presentable to the Carson bed set.

"Mr. Robby" spotted the egg money sewed in the lining of my coat the moment I walked into his salon. "I'm going to cut your hair in a trend that just came in last Thursday," he said excitedly.

Later, I looked miserably into the mirror and mumbled, "I'm a star wearing a new trend. I just blew $18.50 and I belong here."

"Don't worry about it," he said, "the trend won't last through next Thursday."

Thirty minutes before air time on the sixth floor a page handed me a large key. "I don't have to," I smiled nervously. "It's for your dressing room," he said dryly.

The dressing room was large and bare with one chair and a fanhouse mirror. It seemed a shame to waste it, so I repinned my underwear straps to the shoulders of my dress.

A man with a clipboard knocked on the door and gave me two papers to sign.

"Aren't you going to read them?" he asked, as I scrawled my name on them. "Should a star have to read?" I laughed rebelliously. I wished I had remembered my glasses.

In the make-up room a miracle worker took 20 years off my life by penciling out my frown lines and my only laugh line, souvenirs of a 17-year-old marriage. He did wonderful things with my virgin eyebrows, which heretofore had gotten split and promise.

Just offstage, I spotted Johnny Carson, tall, slight, and tanned as a tourist spending his first summer in Miami Beach.

Carson smiled. I recoiled in the corner of the small, carpeted room offstage where the guests watch a colored monitor of the show. Mrs. Louis Armstrong sat next to me. Carl Reiner lounged against the door.

Finally, I was the only one left in the room. "You're on after the bleach commercial," yelled a technician. I figured.

I arrived home breathless with excitement after my TV romp with Carson and the family could hardly contain their eagerness.

"We're out of underwear! you have to drive me over to get my fish-of-the-month or I don't get my blouse! I lost a tooth and Daddy said you know what's the scale for the tooth fairy?"

A homemade sign spanned the kitchen (where else?). It read, "Welcome home. We need you."

I said to myself, "I'm a star? I belong here."

with him again. Rita's doctor husband and their baby have arrived on location in Le Touquet, Brittany, to stay with mama for several weeks.

Juliet Prowse, the toast of London in Sweet Charity, has some sharp ideas on family relationships. "I think married people should be separated from their children. Kids can drive you crazy and parents need a rest." Juliet has postponed her marriage to choreographer Ed Gasper because they will be separated for six months while he works with Bob Fosse on the film version of Shirley MacLaine's Sweet Charity. While Juliet believes in separations for parents and children — "and it's a good thing for husbands, wives, and sweethearts to get away from one another" — she does think six months is too long. Too much can happen.

Reinold Russell will be "Time" covered, with famed artist Marion Pike putting Roz's well-lived-in face on paper. ... If you want to keep your freshness and innocence indefinitely, put them into a refrigerator. That's what Franco Zeffirelli did, he says, with his two young stars in Romeo and Juliet. Because, he says, life in Rome was beginning to mature them too fast. I wonder what he means by that. Doesn't he know that youth will and must be served?

With Rolling Stones' Brian Jones, sentenced to nine months in the pokey after pleading guilty to taking pot, I wasn't too surprised when the British censors banned all and any films featuring LSD. This includes Peter Fonda's picture, The Trip, and Richard Todd's Love-In. The hippies don't seem to be getting the message through to the people who pass the pictures in England.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Hayley 'Other Woman'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Hayley Mills won't discuss Roy Boulting's divorce in which she is named as the other woman. "The 54-year-old director and the young star have been looking for a good project to make together since she finished Pretty Polly a year ago. That's when they met. It's ridiculous to think of Hayley as the other woman and even more so as the mother of six children which she will inherit as the next Mrs. Boulting. It's all like one of those nature films where they rush the process of aging, from the bud to full bloom.

Carl Foreman returned to his new home in London with McKenna's Gold under his arm. He will cut and edit his western epic in Hollywood on the Thames. ... Carl's two-year-old son is sharing his birthday party with the two-year-old son of late director Tony Mann, who died so suddenly in the midst of directing Mia Farrow and Laurence Harvey in A Dandy in Aspic.

All the American networks are bidding for the one-hour special financed by the Beatles at a cost of $100,000. It's called something like The Magical Mystical Tour. (If only I could read my writing!) Anyway, it takes place during a bus tour of the west country. The quartette, having created a new image for the youth of the world, have decided they will not work for anyone but themselves. This includes films as well, although they still owe one to United Artists. In the future they will direct and produce as well as write, act and sing.

The new Marion Brande is the old Marion Brande in The Night of the Following Day. My boy has lost 30 pounds. He persuaded Rita Moreno to emerge from retirement to work with him again. Rita's doctor husband and their baby have arrived on location in Le Touquet, Brittany, to stay with mama for several weeks.

Discusses Learning

We look upon "learning" as an isolated process that takes place in the mind; but nothing takes place in the mind alone. The total environment in which we learn something is an integral part of that learning.

Everyone who speaks a second language, however poorly, has had the experience of "forgetting" the language when he returns to his homeland. Yet, if he goes back to the country of the second language, he quickly picks it up again — because the environment promotes speedy recall.

The specific environment becomes a "part" of what is learned. For instance, experiments have shown that when the classroom learning of school children is later examined in a different room, the amount recalled is smaller than when the exam takes place in the original room.

Even having a different teacher in charge of the exam impairs the recall. And, more strikingly, even a minor element such as color is important — when pupils are given nonsense syllables to learn against a colored background, it takes more time to relearn them later when presented against a different color of ground than when the background color remains the same!

What the German psychologists call "gestalt" — the total pattern with all its associations and interrelationships — determines how well we learn and how easily we recall what we have learned. If we learn under unpleasant conditions, the learning tends to be rejected along with the negative environment it took place in.

If we understand this, we can sympathize more fully with the demand in the U.S. for integrated schooling on the part of the underprivileged. It is not so much that the all-white schools have better teachers and more adequate material; it is that the total environment of learning promotes retention and recall, and thus results in higher marks for crucial examinations.

An atmosphere that is conducive to learning is fully as important as the actual tools and techniques of education. Most learning is a process of association — and if pupils associate the material with bleak conditions, indifferent teachers, inattentive pupils, and a prison atmosphere, then the subjects themselves will be repressed and rejected.

Mind and the emotions cannot be separated by anyone.

Continuity of background, constant stimulation, and adequate motivation are the three most important elements that make for effective learning — and when these are lacking it is a lot more comfortable to forget than to remember.

Separatism Not for Him

Names in the News

NEW YORK — Concert violinist Emery Deutsch has declared war on a ruling that has forced him to part with his instrument during commercial air flights.

He said in an interview at LaGuardia airport a ruling that all instruments in their cases must be put in the baggage compartment if they can't be placed under the seat was "unfair to longhair musicians."

The violinist said he has paid half fare to keep his violin in the passenger compartment and is willing to continue doing so. His chief complaint is that he is no longer allowed to hold the violin between his knees but must surrender it to a stewardess who straps it in a seat.

As a result, Deutsch said, his valuable 18th century Guarnerius instrument was jarred when the plane landed on a trip from Cleveland to New York two weeks ago and the violin case hit the floor. The soundpost moved and had to be adjusted.

"I will not take that chance again under any condition," said Deutsch.

HOLLYWOOD — Actor Charles Bickford — co-star in television's series The Virginian — whose crinkled hair, gruff voice and granite features were well-known trademarks for more than three decades, died Thursday at 78.

Among others, Bickford played a farmer in Johnny Belinda; a priest in the Babe Ruth Story; and a war correspondent in Command Decision.

OTTAWA — The hippie movement is dying and many hippies are returning to "square society," David Depoe, spokesman for the Yorkville hippies said.

WINDSOR, England — Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, 75, a former governor-general of Canada, is recovering from a mild heart attack.

WEST VANCOUVER — A 33-year-old Vancouver man charged with fraudulently claiming first prize in a salmon derby sponsored by Vancouver's evening newspaper, the Sun, was remanded to Dec. 21 for trial when he appeared in magistrate's court.

David John Chas is accused of defrauding Pacific Press, publishers of the Sun, of a power boat and equipment valued at $3,500 on Aug. 20.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Mrs. Charles LaBrache, a widow, will be accompanied by seven of eight sons who served with the Canadian armed forces during the Second World War, when she places a wreath at the Ottawa cenotaph on Remembrance Day as Mother of the Year.

The eighth son, Dollard, was killed in Italy in May, 1944.

Pills No Answer—Doctor

Baby Boom Studied

BERKELEY, CALIF. (UPI)—Dr. Judith Blake Davis believes "The Pill" is no answer to the world's baby boom.

The doctor, chairman of the department of demography at the University of California, is pursuing an analysis of data on views held by American's dating back over three decades on the size of families.

She wants to know why families of all religious, social and economic groupings actually prefer an average of three or more children.

The result of her study, she believes, will be a scientific estimation of the types of roadblocks which a really effective fertility control policy will have to solve.

Concentration on birth control instrumentalities and devices alone, she said "does not seem to be the answer."

Dr. Davies termed it "a myth that rapid population growth is occasioned primarily by unwanted births — births that would not have occurred if women had an effective and "acceptable" contraceptive.

Her findings, after examination of 13 surveys of national samples of American population since 1936, included:

● No major social and economic grouping in recent years considers a small family (two children) to be desirable.

● Proportionally lower-income, less-educated groups consider families in excess of three children to be more desirable than affluent groups.

● Although Catholics idealize larger families, the difference between religious groups is slight.

● Men typically want smaller families than women, a fact which puts in doubt the belief that in exceeding a two-child family, women merely comply with their husbands' wishes.

Chaplain Defends Soldiers

FORT GORDON, Ga. (AP) — A chaplain is conducting an army-wide crusade through closed circuit television espousing the premise that a soldier does not violate the biblical commandment "Thou shalt not kill" when he goes into battle.

"A soldier doesn't kill for personal gain," Maj. Eugene E. Allen said in an interview Wednesday. "He doesn't murder."

Allen, a Baptist, says that point and the fact soldiers are serving their country render the commandment irrelevant to the U.S. fighting man.

Rabies Appeal Works

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thomas Wylie, object of an international search after a rabies-stricken cat he handled prior to returning from a trip to Africa, was located in the Vancouver area Thursday.

Mr. Wylie, 58, was located by Vancouver police after Ottawa officials appealed for help in tracking him down. The Ottawa officials had earlier received a telegram from the U.S. Peace Corps office in Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania, that said a cat Mr. Wylie had played with before leaving there Oct. 23 had died of rabies.

RABID ANIMAL

The rabid animal died Nov. 3. Rabies is a highly contagious disease affecting the brain and is usually fatal even to humans if not curbed in its preliminary stages.

Mr. Wylie was the first director of Vancouver's Maritime Museum, from 1960 to 1962. It was not immediately known if he will be treated for possible rabies infection.

GIs Drop Drug Packages

TACOMA (AP) — A U.S. Customs official said Thursday 15 batches of marijuana have been seized since March at the U.S. Military Airlift Command passenger terminal at nearby McChord Air Force Base.

Angus Williams, customs port director for Tacoma and Olympia, said the amounts of marijuana seized ranged from 1½ cigarettes to eight pounds bulk.

Williams described the number of cases as "very small" in view of the 25,000 military passengers inbound each month.

The marijuana was found in souvenir pillows, the toe of a combat boot behind a rolled-up sock, in shaving kits, barracks bags and in packages left behind by GIs who abandoned them after they saw how thoroughly customs officials were inspecting belongings.

Williams said Customs inspectors were being extra-vigilant to prevent any large-scale attempts to smuggle marijuana into the country.

Apollo on Target Surveyor on Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Saturn V super-rocket, performing like a veteran on its first test flight, hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,234 miles into space Thursday to spark new hope that U.S. astronauts can land on the moon in 1939. (See also Page 5.)

Piloted by an automatic pilot taking the place of astronauts, the Apollo spacecraft eight hours and 37 minutes later survived a fiery plunge through earth's atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour. It parachuted to a bullseye landing within sight of cheering crew members aboard the prime recovery ship in the Pacific 600 miles north of Hawaii.

Clocking off flight events with a precision described by project officials as "incredible" the 363-foot-tall Saturn V proved it can accomplish what it

Double Triumph for U.S. in Space

Saturn's starting point

PASEADENA, Calif. (AP)—Surveyor VI settled softly on the moon Thursday and televised pictures of a rugged area never before photographed at close range, thus giving the United States its second space success in less than 12 hours.

First pictures, received 50 minutes after landing, showed one of the craft's three landing pads apparently undamaged. The soil around the pad was typical of the lunar surface, as shown in previous Surveyor pictures—a kind of sandy loam.

The three legged spacecraft braked itself to a touch-down at 5:01 p.m. in a rugged area near the centre of the lunar disk just a few hours after an unmanned Apollo moonship had splashed into the Pacific to climax an historic ride atop a 36-storey Saturn V rocket.

He'll Help Lepers

Leger Quits High Post For Mission

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger Thursday explained why he has decided to "give up the position of command to become a simple missionary priest" in Africa.

"He spoke at a press conference a few hours after an announcement from the Vatican that he had resigned as Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands. The Pope has accepted his resignation.

A statement he gave to reporters said he believes that the Church is "a missionary body."

FIRST TO HUMBLE

"The day when she ceases to go towards those who have not yet received the Gospel, she will have turned in on herself.

"But if the Gospel must be proclaimed to all men, it is directed first of all to the humble, to the poor in spirit for whom our Lord always showed a particular concern."

He contrasted the world problems of hunger, under-development, illiteracy and "the silent suffering of thousands of lepers" with a "technocratic, efficient, automated and sophisticated civilization."

'WORDS TO ACTIONS'

"The time has come to go from words to actions. I wish to dedicate the few years allotted me to give spiritual and material assistance to the lepers. And so I am leaving for Africa."

He did not specify to which part of Africa he will go, but he said he would leave in mid-December.

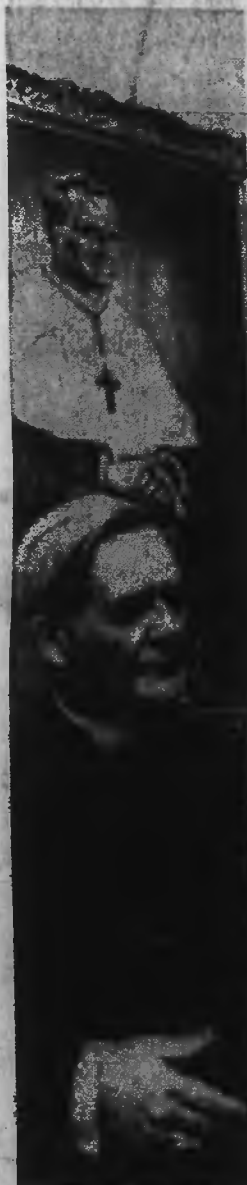

The archbishop visited Africa and saw leper colonies for the first time in 1963. He said Thursday he likely will go to a part of Africa where there are no facilities for treatment of leprosy victims and try to raise funds to build such facilities.

'SOLEBOSIS'

Among the reasons he gave for his decision was the fact that "I have reached the age where a certain sclerosis of soul and body might set in."

"The spur must be used to get out of the rut. It is so easy to become installed in comfortable habits after having exercised authority for a long time, especially in the Vatican."

'Message for Believers'

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican describes as exceptional the decision of Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger to resign as archbishop of Montreal to devote his life to lepers, but says it is "an expression of a message of authenticity for all the believers."

Under the heading "The Prince of the Roman Catholic Church among the lepers," the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano says:

"If a condition of suffering was as perceptible in the urgent and influencing propositions of the archbishop, no one could have known or imagined the secret interior of the wakeful priest, the secret of the vocation within a vocation."

Run Departments, Not Campaigns

PEARSON MUZZLES 'HEIRS'

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has put his foot down and ordered Liberal leadership candidates within his cabinet to stop their campaigning, informed sources said Thursday night.

Sharp

Martin

Hellyer

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and Transport Minister Paul Hellyer immediately began cancelling plans to attend the Alberta Liberal convention in Edmonton this weekend.

Registrar-General John Turner cancelled out Wednesday.

PANELISTS

All four were to appear as panelists on various subjects at the convention.

Sources said Pearson felt that some cabinet ministers were working harder for the leadership than they were in running their departments.

His criticism was reported to be aimed mainly at Sharp, Martin and Hellyer.

EFFICIENCY FIRST

The prime minister is said to be insisting that order and efficiency will prevail in the administration of portfolios as long as he is prime minister.

It was the second time that Pearson had had to lay down the law to certain cabinet ministers about their leadership aspirations.

SECOND TIME

Last winter Sharp, Martin and Hellyer suddenly cancelled plans to attend a Quebec Liberal convention.

The case this time was slightly different in that the four ministers all had been invited to the Alberta convention.

Sharp and Hellyer were to appear on two separate panels on urban affairs. Martin on one on foreign affairs and Turner on one on consumer affairs.

NO COMMENT

There was no comment from the Prime Minister's office.

Turner was in Vancouver while Hellyer left here late Thursday for Prince Edward Island.

Sharp and Martin were not immediately available for comment.

ANNOYED

Pearson was said to be becoming more and more annoyed that some of his cabinet ministers were spending a lot of time outside of Ottawa addressing political meetings of one kind or another.

He showed this annoyance in late September when at least half the cabinet was absent from the Commons when the parliamentary session resumed.

TOLD TO ATTEND

At that time he told the cabinet, reliable sources said, there would have to be better Commons attendance by cabinet ministers.

Sources said Pearson is determined to dampen down the leadership race until he announces the date for his retirement.

IF ALL WELL...

Current speculation here is that Pearson will make no decision about his retirement at least until after the Federal-Provincial conference here in late January or early February. It is believed he may announce a retirement date if the Conference goes well.

Plane loses wings, then parachute billows

'Disabled' craft gently touches ground and chute collapses

Pilot Delays Leap

Airplane Bails Out

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)—

A veteran pilot deliberately blew the wings off a four-seat airplane Thursday and the craft then parachuted softly and safely to earth in the first airborne test of a novel experimental system designed to prevent plane crashes.

"It came off beautifully," said pilot Thomas Walker of New York City.

"Anybody in the plane would have been safe."

Designers of the system, Dario Manfredi and Angelo Raldi, smiled approvingly. They are the founders of the Aircraft Safety Release Corp. of New York.

Walker took off from Lakehurst Naval Air Station in a Stinson Voyager.

At about 4,600 feet and a speed of 80 miles an hour he pulled a lever and three pins in each wing were blown out, separating the wings from the body.

The only hitch developed when the wing chutes became tangled and the wings crashed to the ground.

As the wings were blasted clear, the plane looped in a circle and a specially designed parachute 64 feet in diameter billowed forth.

Walker remained in the cockpit noting characteristics of the descent until the body of the craft was at an altitude of 1,500 feet. Then he, too, parachuted clear.

Grade School Studies Hurt by War Fears

OTTAWA (CP)—Fear of war is causing an increase in the number of public school children with learning difficulties, says Ottawa public school psychologist Mrs. John Wickett. "I have seen children at the Grade 1 level worrying that they will be bombed, that the world will end before they reach Grade 5," she said in a speech.

Death Debate Led By Eloquent Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament's third major debate on capital punishment opened in the Commons Thursday with an eloquent appeal by Solicitor-General Pennell that MPs use their "reason, knowledge and experience" and severely restrict use of the death penalty.

He won repeated applause as he pleaded for support for his bill which would abolish the death penalty for all murderers except those who kill policemen or prison guards. The bill sets a trial period of five years.

COMPROMISE

He predicted it could be defeated only if an "unhappy coalition" should emerge between abolitionists who feel the bill does not go far enough and retentionists who feel it goes too far.

"This bill is, of course, a compromise," Pennell said. As a believer in the fact that "capital punishment is wrong in principle," he recognized this.

But he described it as the "most promising measure that can be introduced now and its passage 'will be a gain'."

STEP AHEAD

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said all 22 New Democrats in Parliament support the bill in principle but the party intends to introduce amendments aimed at "directly and completely abolishing capital punishment in Canada."

Brewin criticized the solicitor-general's bill for its "indirect approach" to the goal of Next game: Tuesday - Colony vs. Farmers Construction; Red Lion vs. Labatts.

Independents, who really owned Farmer Construction a favor for beating Labatts earlier in the week, refused to repay it Thursday and punnished Farmers, 79-48, in men's city senior basketball action.

In other action, Colony Inn handed Labatts their second loss in a row, 79-55, and moved into a second-place tie with the brewers, four points behind the leaders.

LORIMER HAS 19

Darryl Lorimer with 19, and Rick Williamson and Ken Gregory with 18 each made it easy for Independents as they grabbed a 33-17 first-half lead and won going away. Jordan Ellis topped Farmer Construction with 13 points and Fred Gubbels had 10.

Jim Cunningham scored on 13 of 16 free throws and added five baskets for a 23-point performance for Colony Inn. Elmer Littleton helped with 14 as the winners jumped into a 41-22 lead at the half. Ed Kovalevich with 19 and Joe Patterson with 13 paced Labatts.

Chinooks Facing Crucial Weekend - Saints March In

There may be more crucial weekends in the Inter-City Junior Basketball league later in the season but this one is the most important to date.

The results of four games could produce a three-way tie for top place - or could send either Victoria Chinooks or Vancouver CYO Saints into sole possession of first place with a comfortable four-point margin.

|               | GP | W | L | P | Pts |
|---------------|----|---|---|---|-----|
| Chinooks      | 6  | 5 | 1 | 0 | 10  |
| Vancouver CYO | 6  | 4 | 2 | 0 | 8   |
| Langley       | 6  | 3 | 3 | 0 | 6   |
| North Shore   | 6  | 2 | 4 | 0 | 4   |
| Jayvees       | 6  | 1 | 5 | 0 | 2   |

Next games: Saturday, 8 p.m. - Chinooks and CYO at Central Junior High; IGA and UVic Jayvees in Vancouver.

Current co-leaders, Chinooks and Saints, meet at Central Junior High here Saturday and Sunday and a double win for either team would produce the undisputed leader. It would likely also drop the double loser into third place.

Present third-place Vancouver IGA, just two points behind the top teams, host the winless UVic Jayvees in a pair of games.

A split between Chinooks and Saints and a double win by IGA would produce the three-way tie.

Smoothie Third?

WASHINGTON (CP) - Warren Beasley, trainer of the Toronto horse, He's a Smoothie, forecasts a third place finish Saturday in the $150,000 Washington, D.C. International.

"He is as good as we can get him," Beasley said Thursday after the four-year-old Canadian entry "blew out" over a half-mile in 48 seconds. "He's going into this with no excuses."

But Beasley said he sees He's a Smoothie coming third in the 1 1/2-mile turf event behind the heavily-favored American horse Damascus and Britain's Ribocco.

Port Alberni Here Tonight

Port Alberni Luckies make their Equimall Sports Centre debut tonight in the Vancouver Island Hockey League and they will likely make an early acquaintance with Glyn Hamper (above), a five-year University of Victoria veteran. Queen's Own Rifles and Tudor Monarchs open the double-bill at 7:45 p.m., with Luckies and Vikings meeting at 9:15.

Every Player

Celtic Levies $750 Fines

GLASGOW (CP) - Glasgow Celtic has taken the unprecedented step of fining every player on the soccer team who participated in the Battle of Montevideo last weekend.

The battle was the World Cup championship playoff when Racing Club of Argentina when Celtic, European champion, fell 1-0.

FOUR DISMISSED

By the time the match ended Celtic had only seven men on the field, four of their team and two Argentines having been ordered off after the match degenerated into a fight that could hardly be called soccer.

In announcing the fines Thursday, club chairman Robert Kelly said:

"We feel that the criticism we have received in Britain was much more violent than anything we receive from the Argentinians and other South American newspapers."

WAS A SHOCK

He added that the match was a big shock to everybody.

"It was a shock that the team which had established such a wonderful reputation for discipline should fall so badly from grace on this occasion," Kelly said.

Celtic defeated Racing Club 1-0 in Glasgow. Then the Scots lost 2-1 in Buenos Aires, making necessary the playoff - a match that will go down in soccer history as the Battle of Montevideo.

REASON NEEDED

Kelly said he thought he must put forward some reason for a "most unfortunate match" and added:

"Let me assure you that this club from the directors to the players, take responsibility for what happened on this day."

"A reason for our players forgetting themselves and losing their tempers so badly was the fact that winger Jimmy Johnston, who had been so badly abused in all three games was jam at the top, although IGA has played one more game than the others."

Chinooks face their toughest test of the young season when they take on the Saints and they will have to stop Brent Maclean a three-year veteran with CYO, if they hope to win.

Maclean isn't a big man, in fact he is only five-foot-nine, but he is the key to Saints' fast breaking attack and is tough on drives to the basket.

GOOD REBOUNTS

Saints who have won two Canadian championships in the last five years, have five other rebounders - John Glaswick, Ken Elmer, Brian Hyland, Claire Wakefield, and Tony Herbert.

They also have recruited well and their newcomers include Corky Josual from Alberni Athletics seniors, Brock Hillard from Alberni High, Glen Dreidinger from Vancouver YMC, Harry McCalkum from Vancouver Sentinel High and Bob Cunningham from Prince George.

With Maclean, Elmer, Josual, Hillard and Herbert all originally from Alberni, Saints have a strong island following.

TURNER CONFIDENT

Coch Moe Turner of Chinooks is confident however. He feels that he has a balanced club and that any one of his team can break out in a scoring rash at any time. He also believes that Ollie Mollanen, Rod Fields, Mike O'Connor and Dave Wilman could give Chinooks backboard control.

Two of the top high school clubs in the city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, will provide preliminary action at 7 p.m. Saturday. Sunday's game starts at 1:30 p.m.

Vancouver Killarney got into the thick of the race Thursday night with a come-from-behind 54-47 win over North Shore.

The win moved them into a temporary first-place tie with Chinooks and CYO but they will be idle over the weekend as the others split the deadlock.

Palmer's 68 Leads Field In World Golf

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Arnold Palmer shot a four-under-par 68 Thursday for a first place tie with young Florentino Molina of Argentina and gave the United States the first round lead in the 15th World Cup Golf Tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, Palmer's partner in the team competition, finished with a par 71. That gave the American team a score of 140 and a one-stroke lead over Molina and team-mate Fidel de Luca after the first 18 holes.

Nicklaus and Palmer are defending the team title they won last year in Tokyo.

KNUDSON OFF

George Knudson of Toronto, defending individual champion, was off his game and shot a 73. But team-mate Al Balding of Toronto shot a sizzling 70 to give Canada a 143 total and a tie for third place in the team standings with South Africa and Belgium.

Gary Player of South Africa shot a three-under-par 33 on the back nine for a 59. Team-mate Harold Henning had a 74. Belgium's Donal Swaleaga and Floy van Donk fired a 72 and 71 for the other 143 score.

Balding's 70 over the 7,250-yard Club de Mexico course left him tied for fourth with J. M. Gonzalez of Brazil and Ramon Samota of Spain in the individual standings.

Several of the players, including Palmer and Balding, complained of slow play but said the greens—cause of some complaints earlier in the week—were in good shape after being mowed Wednesday night.

NICKLAUS IMPRESSES

Nicklaus made a big impression on the Mexican gallery with his booming, pin-point drives on the narrow, wooded course.

Nicklaus had trouble on the greens, however, and missed three usually-easy putts on the back nine alone.

O'Keefes Aiming At Province Cup

Victoria O'Keefes have taken aim at the Province Cup, a stepping stone to the Dominion Cup, and the competition will keep them busier later this season than they have been in recent weeks or recent seasons.

O'Keefes have passed up Province Cup play eight of the last nine years, but policy has been altered for a couple of very good reasons.

KENNEDY CUP CLOUDED

Regular-season PCSL champions in 1966, O'Keefes won the international tournament for the Kennedy Cup over teams from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Mexico but there is some doubt about the future of the Kennedy Cup competition and that's another reason for the policy switch.

The Kennedy Cup could become the victim of professional soccer which is enjoying increasing popularity in the United States.

Dave Stothard and Donny McIntosh will be at right and left fullback and George Paul, Bill Hamilton and Brian Robinson across the half line.

Jim Morris is scheduled to start at right wing despite a pulled leg muscle. If he can't make it, Marty Taylor will draw the assignment. Peter Brett, Ilee Mackay, Bert Soutar and Peter Wilson complete the front wall.

Equipped with plenty of depth, O'Keefes have Russ Ball, Dunc McCaig, Ray Telford, Tom Westwater, Dick Joyce and Peter Wheaton ready for action if needed.

EXPERIENCED TEAM

Firefighters, presently tied with O'Keefes in fifth place, largely because they have both played less games than higher clubs, bring a wealth of experience and a couple of highly-touted youngsters with them.

'BOY OF YEAR'

They will also start 16-year-old Glen Johnson, B.C.'s Soccer boy of the Year last season, at left wing; Don Boyd, who has played the last couple of years with Columbus, at right half; and Ernie Koverchuk, who was with New Westminster last season.

Also available are 17-year-old Bob Buchan, up from Grandview League; Ed Cannon, a holdover obtained last year from North Shore; and Tony Mazzell, a PCSL veteran who was with Burnaby last season.

HUGHES OUT

Missing from the Firefighters lineup will be veteran Art Hughes, who is suffering from a shoulder separation and will probably retire, and another veteran, Jim Blondel, who has not yet signed for this season. Game time is 2 p.m.

Shawnigan, Claremont Play Draws

A pair of draws was the result Thursday of two high school exhibition rugby matches between Claremont and Shawnigan Lake teams at North Saanich Junior High School.

Claremont's first team came from behind to draw, 3-3, with their Shawnigan Lake opponents, while Claremont and Shawnigan second teams battled to a scoreless draw.

An unconverted try by Pat Goodwill gave Shawnigan a 3-0 first half lead. Although Shawnigan Lake won most of the loose scrums, Claremont weight players with Ted Clark beating the man and diving over for the tying try in the second half.

In the other game, Claremont and Shawnigan second squads fought an evenly played match with Claremont having the only scoring threat when Wayne Ruffie missed a penalty kick in the second half.

Goodwill gave Shawnigan a first half lead. Although Shawnigan Lake won most of the returns, Clarendon made

why corn it up?

This may surprise you, but practically all of those top-selling Canadian whiskies that call themselves "rye" are mostly made from corn. It's a shame, because an all-rye whisky is delightfully different. It's clean and clear and gentle, as only a real rye can be. Corn up a good whisky like Alberta Premium? Never!

Love Is a Rose Bush
And Wonderful Men

By WAYNE THOMAS

COURTENAY — There's a group of elderly widows in Courtenay who have nothing but praise for 40 men friends.

"Their thoughtfulness is very admirable," summed up Kiwanis Village resident Mrs. Anne Christie, 69, whose husband William died 20 years ago.

She was referring to the Kiwanis Club members in Courtenay who have raised $100,000 during the past 10 years for the low-cost accommodation.

Low Rents

"There are no stairs. This is what I am so pleased about," said Mrs. Christie.

"But I think the main thing is that you're able to look after yourself. It keeps you occupied, it's so much better than living in a drab rooming place."

"Of course the rents are the next best thing about the village."

"I pay only $21 a month, some of the other places here range from $36 a month for the married to $28 for the early-bird singles."

Open Market

The homes would rent for almost four times as much on the open market.

"A requirement is that you must have a minimum of $100 a month income and a maximum of $138," she explained.

"However I think this rule is waived in exceptional circumstances."

Immediate Aid

There's no getting out of the job of going around to the village and cutting the lawn.

If a member cannot make it, usually because he's so sick that he should be in hospital, he must have a standby who can fill in for him.

"The men are so wonderful, if there is anything at all wrong, such as electrical faults or fuses, they will come around immediately," she said.

In summer, rather than holding weekly indoor meetings, the Kiwanians drive around to the village and have barbecues.

Next March

There are five duplexes divided into single units in the village at present, and one quadruplex.

Three more duplexes are planned, costing $50,000, and they are initially scheduled for completion in early spring.

Except for the married couples in the quadruplex, and one elderly man in a single, widows occupy all the modern, contemporary-style homes.

The houses are low-roofed, and face out onto spacious lawns and gardens.

Six Deaths

"All the people here are nice, but we're getting on in years and there have been six deaths since I've been here," she said.

Mrs. Christie, whose son Joe runs Courtenay Tire Service and whose daughter lives in Chilliwack, Manitoba, is an avid gardener.

Pointing to shrubs, flowers and rose bushes climbing high alongside the chocolate brown and white exterior of her house, she said, "See my roses, they're my real love."

"I planted them, nurtured them and I even prune them."

Living Room

Inside, the houses are small. But they are neat, functional and fit the needs of one person adequately.

The living room is the centre, both architecturally and aesthetically, of the Kiwanis Village homes.

There is a kitchen, for which the refrigerator and stove are supplied, and there is a back door for easy access.

Although the centre is termed a village, much of the communal atmosphere of such is missing, allowing the women to lead self-contained lives if they wish.

Veteran

For those who want companionship, a neighbor is only a few steps away. And there is always a pleasant hour to spend in the communal laundry.

"I left Victoria for Courtenay seven years ago," she said, "and have been in the village for 3½ years."

"I'm on a war veteran's pension and the rents down there are much too steep for me."

The bus fares are also very high in Victoria, she added.

"Courtenay is still like a country town in some ways and it's much more friendly than the city."

She blamed the air force for high rents even in Courtenay, and said, "I couldn't afford such luxurious accommodation if it wasn't for the Kiwanians."

Campbell's Plan

Courtenay solicitor and president of the Comox Valley Kiwanis Village Society, Terry Ryan, explained that the original idea for the village came from present welfare minister Dan Campbell.

"Dan was our first president and a very active member. About 10 years ago he suggested the idea."

He added that Campbell is still an honorary member of the club.

The society is a subsidiary of the Courtenay-Comox Kiwanis Club, and all 40 members are involved in the village project.

Money for the housing scheme has been raised by provincial grants, loans at 6½ per cent interest (recently hiked) from the federal government, local grants and club fund-raising efforts.

The latter have included bringing the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, the Don Cosack dancers and the Victoria Symphony Orchestra to Courtenay.

The project is also on the United Good Neighbor Appeal list.

Another 20

The club bought the land from the council, which handed over a cheque for the equal amount towards the building fund.

"There is about 8,000 square feet in the overall block," said committee member Steve Wharmam, "which should give us room to accommodate at least 20 more people."

That should be pretty reassuring to 14 elderly widows on the waiting list.

Jordon for Mayor

'Chief Job
No Hobby'

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Former mayor and fireman of Port Alberni, Loran Jordon, has entered the race for mayor of the new amalgamated city of Port Alberni.

"The job of mayor is developing into a full-time project. It's no longer something that can be crammed into an occasional hour or two after work," he said Thursday.

"I have had experience. I think I have the ability and I know I have the time now to devote to the job. He sold his interest in the Jordon and Biggs trucking firm last year.

His entry will spark new interest in the municipal race.

Only competitors so far are Mayor Les Hammer, Port Alberni postmaster, with a head of the labour union, his deputy, Fred Bishop, former Alberni mayor, and George Dunsbar, an accountant.

Civic officials feel the Dec. 9 elections will have more color and more significance now that the Twin Cities have amalgated enough to even rouse voters out of the apathy which has surrounded local elections in the past.

Jordon, who suffered a heart attack 18 months ago, said his health is now 100 per cent.

The one-time mayor has lived in the Alberni Valley for 37 years.

He was an alderman for five years and mayor of Port Alberni for 16 years until the end of his term in 1963.

He said then that he felt 21 years of civic service was enough.

One of the first acts of the present mayor, Les Hammer, was to honor Mr. Jordon as a fireman of the city of Port Alberni.

Inflation Cure
Tossed in Ring

NANAIMO — The federal government should institute a crash program to offset trends towards inflation, a well-attended Chamber of Commerce meeting was told Thursday night.

Bruce Smith, president of the B.C. Chamber, said the government should delay the introduction of Medicare (which is contemplated being so) for at least two years, freeze the payrolls of government employees for two years and delay capital expenditures for two years on projects except those for education and the aged.

PORT ALBERNI — If valley residents don't take to the water in one big splash it won't be the fault of aquatics director Trevor Clode and his helpers at the Echo 67 pool.

There's time set aside for everyone from water babies (3 and 4 years old) and flippers (5 and 6 years old) to tired businessmen and figure-conscious housewives.

There are classes for all ages and types of swimmers from floaters to synchronized swim experts.

Alberni in the Swim

And for those who just want to get in there and have a good excuse for a lazy session of puff and paddle, there's time for that too.

Swim classes for pre-schoolers can include mothers if they wish to come along.

It costs the same whether moms get in the act or not, since instruction for the wee ones demands one adult on hand for every two little water babies, Clode explained.

If the mothers want to come and get wet along with the children, it won't cost them any more, since if they don't accompany their little ones, we have to provide additional paid personnel, he said.

Twelve lessons for the smallest ones cost $3, for the slightly older flipper class, the cost drops to $5 for 12 lessons.

Swim lessons for all ages are set up on the basis of two lessons a week over a 6-week period. Maximum class for moms and water babies is $6.

Apparently headed for great popularity are the women's swim-and-trim classes, scheduled for Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Cost is $5 cents a time and participants may choose their own occasions to take part, as often or as seldom as they wish.

Children Reaching New Heights,
Now Parents Must Be Raised

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Schools have done a lot for children, the next big job is to help parents catch up.

One of the points of focus of adult education here is to present academic courses which will upgrade parents who have children attaining a higher education level.

In his interim report adult director Robert Thorburn told the Cowichan School Board "The old idea that education ends when a person leaves school no longer applies."

"We have to make possible the opportunity for adults to raise their academic or liberal education level to keep pace with the new, young generation of thinkers."

He said the rapid increase of the enrollment figure for academic courses of the adult education program, bears out the fact more and more adults attempt to upgrade their education.

Two years ago 34 people were enrolled, last year it rose to 100 and this year it jumped to 200 persons.

In conjunction with the Cowichan Indian Band, the Cowichan School District's adult education program again carries two upgrading classes for Indians.

Thorburn said "We cannot stand idly by in a community in which there is a large, relatively poorly-educated Indian population, and not try to help them help themselves by making educational courses available, in ways appealing and attractive enough to break through their apathy."

He noted the academic program also provides a second chance for youngsters who dropped out before graduation.

Water Hurt
Heron

DUNCAN — The Duncan zoo has become a safe new home for three Blue Herons which were saved from the Crofton waterfront where they were found sick and starving.

Another two were already too weak and died.

Zoo owner Jim Oyen attributes the deaths to polluted waters.

He said "Normally the birds would have had plenty to eat but something in the water at Crofton made them sick."

"One of them even walked into the kitchen of a Crofton residence, perhaps trying to find help."

The three survivors of the coastal nightmare are reaching normal health again; sleek, well-nourished and apparently content.

The zoo owner said "They were a pitiful sight when they arrived."

"I immediately changed their diet from fish to meat and now they are thriving."

Oyen hopes to have bird experts from Victoria investigate the Crofton area to find out exactly what befell the Herons.

Woman Fights Fire

Brave Bid Fails

A 73-year-old Duncan woman suffered burns in a fire in Victoria Thursday morning while trying to extinguish a blaze in an upstairs room at 1153 Pembroke using only a bucket of water.

The brave act, which was unsuccessful, left Mrs. Mary Modeste with singed hair, burned forehead and shock.

Mrs. Modeste was comforted and led to the house of a neighbor, Mrs. C. R. Warren, 2905 Cameron, where she stayed until a police car took her to Royal Jubilee Hospital for observation.

RELEASED — She was released after treatment and taken to the home of another daughter, Mrs. Roy Paul, 1265 Dunsmuirville.

Mrs. Modeste was babysitting for her daughter, Mrs. T. M. Maxwell, who was in hospital. A fire department investigation disclosed that Mrs. Maxwell's two pre-school children in the house had been playing with matches.

Damage was estimated in the vicinity of $5,000. The house was covered by insurance.

IN FLAMES

Mrs. Modeste went upstairs to investigate after smelling smoke, and found the bedroom in flames. She quickly filled a bucket with water and threw it on the blaze, but the fire had a firm hold.

Firemen chopped through the roof to get at parts of the blaze. Others went in the window of the two-storey frame dwelling.

Two upstairs rooms were gutted and the downstairs section was heavily damaged by water and smoke.

Girl Says She Was Raped
During Indian Bone Game

NANAIMO — "He raped me," said the only witness in Thursday's assize court trial in which Andrew Norbert (Knobby) Bagley is the accused.

Bagley, 29, is the head of a family of seven living in Saanichton.

The alleged offence took place near Duncan's Cowichan River, while a native Indian bone game was in progress.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gould demanded that a different term be used.

"She has told you, in effect, what the verdict is."

"That's for you to say, very, very much for you to say," he told the jury of 11 men and one woman.

The witness traced events of the day, during which she admitted having had intercourse with Kenneth George along the banks of the river.

Later, they were again by the river and separated, soon after which she heard someone approaching.

She said "I didn't exactly run," indicating she had some fears.

In her flight back to the crowd at the bone game, she stumbled, and was pinned to the ground by the accused, she testified.

"He told me to keep quiet."

"He had his hand over my mouth."

"I was scared," she said.

She said she struggled and screamed "two or three times."

The fire of the nearby area sent a shaft of light onto the face of her alleged attacker, and she said, "Knobby, let me go."

When at last the man left, she rejoined her family, with whom she had come to the game, and made a complaint to the police.

Apollo on Target Surveyor on Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Saturn V super-rocket, performing like a veteran on its first test flight, hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,234 miles into space Thursday to spark new hope that U.S. astronauts can land on the moon in 1969. (See also Page 5.)

Piloted by an automatic pilot taking the place of astronauts, the Apollo spacecraft eight hours and 37 minutes later survived a fiery plunge through earth's atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour. It parachuted to a bullseye landing within sight of cheering crew members aboard the prime recovery ship in the Pacific 600 miles north of Hawaii.

Clocking off flight events with a precision described by project officials as "incredible" the 363-foot-tall Saturn V proved it can accomplish what it

Double Triumph for U.S. in Space

Saturn's starting point

PASEDENA, Calif. (AP)—Surveyor VI settled softly on the moon Thursday and televised pictures of a rugged area never before photographed at close range, thus giving the United States its second space success in less than 12 hours.

First pictures, received 50 minutes after landing, showed one of the craft's three landing pads apparently undamaged. The soil around the pad was typical of the lunar surface, as shown in previous Surveyor pictures—a kind of sandy loam.

The three legged spacecraft braked itself to a touch-down at 5:01 p.m. in a rugged area near the centre of the lunar disk just a few hours after an unmanned Apollo moonship had splashed into the Pacific to climax an historic ride atop a 36-storey Saturn V rocket.

He'll Help Lepers

Leger Quits High Post For Mission

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger Thursday explained why he has decided to "give up the position of command to become a simple missionary priest" in Africa.

Leger

He spoke at a press conference a few hours after an announcement from the Vatican that he had resigned as Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands. The Pope has accepted his resignation.

A statement he gave to reporters said he believes that the Church is "a missionary body."

FIRST TO HUMBLE

"The day when she ceases to go towards those who have not yet received the Gospel, she will have turned in on herself."

"But if the Gospel must be proclaimed to all men, it is directed first of all to the humble, to the poor in spirit for whom our Lord always showed a particular concern."

He contrasted the world problems of hunger, under-development, illiteracy and "the silent suffering of thousands of lepers" with a "technocratic, efficient, automated and sophisticated civilization."

'WORDS TO ACTIONS'

"The time has come to go from words to actions. I wish to dedicate the few years allotted me to give spiritual and material assistance to the lepers. And so I am leaving for Africa."

He did not specify to which part of Africa he will go, but he said he would leave in mid-December.

The archbishop visited Africa and saw leper colonies for the first time in 1963. He said Thursday he likely will go to a part of Africa where there are no facilities for treatment of leprosy victims and try to raise funds to build such facilities.

'SCLEROSIS'

Among the reasons he gave for his decision was the fact that "I have reached the age where a certain sclerosis of soul and body might set in."

"The spur must be used to get out of the rut. It is so easy to become installed in comfortable habits after having exercised authority for a long time, especially in the Vatican."

Sharp

Martin

Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has put his foot down and ordered Liberal leadership candidates within his cabinet to stop their campaigning, informed sources said Thursday night.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and Transport Minister Paul Hellyer immediately began cancelling plans to attend the Alberta Liberal convention in Edmonton this weekend.

Registrar-General John Turner cancelled out Wednesday.

PANELISTS

All four were to appear as panelists on various subjects at the convention.

Sources said Pearson felt that some cabinet ministers were working harder for the leadership than they were in running their departments.

His criticism was reported to be aimed mainly at Sharp, Martin and Hellyer.

EFFICIENCY FIRST

The prime minister is said to be insisting that order and efficiency will prevail in the administration of portfolios as long as he is prime minister.

It was the second time that Pearson had had to lay down the law to certain cabinet ministers about their leadership aspirations.

SECOND TIME

Last winter Sharp, Martin and Hellyer suddenly cancelled plans to attend a Quebec Liberal convention.

The case this time was slightly different in that the four ministers all had been invited to the Alberta convention.

Sharp and Hellyer were to appear on two separate panels on urban affairs. Martin on one on foreign affairs and Turner on one on consumer affairs.

NO COMMENT

There was no comment from the Prime Minister's office.

Turner was in Vancouver while Hellyer left here late Thursday for Prince Edward Island.

Sharp and Martin were not immediately available for comment.

ANNOYED

Pearson was said to be becoming more and more annoyed that some of his cabinet ministers were spending a lot of time outside of Ottawa addressing political meetings of one kind or another.

He showed this annoyance in late September when at least half the cabinet was absent from the Commons when the parliamentary session resumed.

TOLD TO ATTEND

At that time he told the cabinet, reliable sources said, there would have to be better Commons attendance by cabinet ministers.

Sources said Pearson is determined to dampen down the leadership race until he announces the date for his retirement.

IF ALL WELL...

Current speculation here is that Pearson will make no decision about his retirement at least until after the Federal-Provincial conference here in late January or early February. It is believed he may announce a retirement date if the Conference goes well.

Plane loses wings, then parachute billows

Airplane Bails Out

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)—A veteran pilot deliberately blew the wings off a four-seat airplane Thursday and the craft then parachuted softly and safely to earth in the first airborne test of a novel experimental system designed to prevent plane crashes.

"It came off beautifully," said pilot Thomas Walker of New York City.

"Anybody in the plane would have been safe."

Designers of the system, Dario Mantredi and Angelo Raiti, smiled approvingly. They are the founders of the Aircraft Safety Release Corp. of New York.

Grade School Studies Hurt by War Fears

OTTAWA (CP)—Fear of war is causing an increase in the number of public school children with learning difficulties, says Ottawa public school psychologist Mrs. John Wickett. "I have seen children at the Grade 1 level worrying that they will be bombed, that the world will end before they reach Grade 3," she said in a speech.

Death Debate Led By Eloquent Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament's third major debate on capital punishment opened in the Commons Thursday with an eloquent appeal by Solicitor-General Pennell that MPs use their "reason, knowledge and experience" and severely restrict use of the death penalty.

He won repeated applause as he pleaded for support for his bill which would abolish the death penalty for all murderers except those who kill policemen or prison guards. The bill sets a trial period of five years.

COMPROMISE

He predicted it could be defeated only if an "unhappy coalition" should emerge between abolitionists who feel the bill does not go far enough and retentionists who feel it goes too far.

"This bill is, of course, a compromise," Pennell said. As a believer in the fact that "capital punishment is wrong in principle," he recognized this.

But he described it as the "most promising measure that can be introduced" now and its passage "will be a gain."

STEP AHEAD
Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto to Greenwood) said all 22 New Democrats in Parliament support the bill in principle but the party intends to introduce amendments aimed at "directly and completely abolishing capital punishment in Canada."

Brewin criticized the solicitor-general's bill for its "indirect approach" to the goal of

'Message for Believers'

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican describes as exceptional the decision of Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger to resign as archbishop of Montreal to devote his life to lepers, but says it is "an expression of a message of authenticity for all the believers."

Under the heading "The Prince of the Roman Catholic Church" among the "lepers," the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano says:

"If a condition of suffering was as perceptible in the urgent and inflaming propositions of the archbishop, no one could have known or imagined the secret interior of the wakeful priest, the secret of the vocation within a vocation."

Heat exchanger built by VMD

Oil Refinery Equipment

$700,000 Deal Lift for VMD

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Harold Husband, president of VMD, said he was "greatly encouraged" by an order for $700,000 the Victoria firm received Thursday from Imperial Oil.

VMD will supply the principal process equipment to be installed in a balanced conversion and expansion program at Imperial's Montreal refinery, for which Arthur G. McKee of Cleveland, Ohio, and Toronto, are the prime contractors.

The equipment includes seven of the very high pressure heat exchangers and one high pressure separator for which VMD has become famous in the oil industry.

"This is a very competitive business, and we are very pleased to have won the contract in the face of U.S. and Eastern Canadian opposition," said Mr. Husband.

"When it is considered, that the steel and other materials have to be shipped to us from the east, and then the finished product returned to Montreal, the winning of this contract becomes quite a feat and a tribute to VMD skill and efficiency."

The exchangers will be made of fabricated chrome-molybdenum steel alloys and they will operate under 3,000 pounds per square inch pressure at heats up to 800 degrees.

Mr. Husband said VMD is the first and only Canadian firm fabricating units of this type.

Last month, VMD announced that it was closing at the end of the year its shipbuilding and ship-repairing operations at Dallas Road, but indicated that it hoped to extend its operations at the Bay Street plant, where the firm specializes in engineering work for many Canadian industries.

Hang-Up Over

It took combined efforts of Victoria fire department and SPCA, Thursday, to rescue seagull found hanging by leg from utility wires on View Street east of Cook. In response to deluge of telephone calls from people who spotted gull's plight fire department dispatched 10 men and ladder truck, and SPCA sent out man and truck. Gull was taken to SPCA headquarters and later released by SPCA official D. H. Beeching.

Soaring Costs of Library 'Too Shocking for Words'

By A. H. MURPHY

Soaring library costs, projected over the next four years in a recent report, were "too shocking for words," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow told a meeting of city council Thursday.

"This is the first report since the four municipalities (Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, amalgamated to operate the library, and I was very much concerned when I saw the report. In fact, I asked the librarian, John Lort, to give me a further statement," said Alderman Lily Wilson, who is city council's representative on the board.

The report, submitted late in October, envisaged the opening of three more branches in Esquimalt, Oak Bay and the Mount Tolmie area, and projected costs.

It would cost $647,000 ($4.27 per capita to operate the library in 1968; $725,000 (4.85) in 1969; $810,000 ($5.41) in 1970 and $950,000 ($6.38) in 1971, the report stated.

"It is now $3.50 per capita and it goes up to $6.75 before it is done," said Alderman Edgelow. "When you consider that one of the big reasons this amalgamation was put into effect was to save money, it is obviously time for the library board to cut down. We're going to have to ask them to do something."

Ald. Edgelow said he conveyed the concern of the mayor and members of council to Mr. Lort and asked for an interview. The mayor suggested that he work with Alderman Wilson and bring a report back to city council.

Strong protests against rising library costs have been made in Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

In Oak Bay on Monday, Councilor J. D. Watts said he realized that the services were necessary, but that he felt the board should take a sharp pencil to its estimates.

At the time T. P. O'Grady, Victoria's city solicitor, warned that the argument was so tenuous that the refusal of one of the participants to assume its share of cost would destroy the whole agreement.

Red Date Saturday

The Victoria branch of the Communist Party of Canada will welcome friends and supporters at a social at Williams Hall, 749 Broughton Street, starting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday to celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the formation of Communism.

Libraries Close

The Greater Victoria Public Library, the Town and Country branch library, and the library station at Brentwood will observe the Remembrance Day holiday Saturday, and will open again Monday.

Scurrah Dresses Given to Museum

By MARK DICKINSON

The ex-mayor's wife donned the dress she wore to a 1912 policeman's ball, showed it off briefly on her front porch, and then handed that and scores of other gowns and hats to the Provincial Museum.

Mrs. Percy Scurrah's gift will be kept together as The Mabel Scurrah Collection of Outstanding Dresses and Hats. There are about 50 of each.

"I had been saving them for years," Mrs. Scurrah said Thursday.

"They are very beautiful gowns that I wore from time to time."

She said the oldest was a gown that she wore when she attended a B.C. Provincial Policemen's ball with her husband in Victoria in 1912.

All of the dresses came from her husband's store, Scurrah's Limited, that the former mayor operated for 50 years. He retired a few years ago.

"I just put them all to one side and kept them—not meaning to wear them again. But I thought that they might go to some good use," Mrs. Scurrah said.

About a year and a half ago, provincial archivist Wilford Ireland told her they would "go well" in the museum, where there were several dresses from the 1800s but only a few from this century.

"They would have to go to someone responsible before I gave them up," she said. "You can't replace them."

Mr. Scurrah was mayor from 1954 to 1961.

Christmas Seal Envelopes Invite Aid in War on TB

Envelopes of Christmas seals, from the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society, will arrive in 36,000 Greater Victoria letter boxes today.

The organization hopes to raise $35,000 of its $360,000 B.C. objective in this area.

The money is used to detect and treat Tuberculosis and other chest disorders. Last year, the TB-Christmas Seal Society had from the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society, will arrive in 36,000 Greater Victoria letter boxes today.

This year's seal bears the design of a Christmas stylized after the Centennial maple leaf.

With the sheet of seals is a pre-addressed envelope in which "we'd like any donation from 25 cents to $25," said a Society spokesman.

Skippers Fined $1,000

The captains of four salmon seiners were fined $1,000 each in district magistrate's court here Thursday for violation of a British Columbia fisheries regulation.

Through counsel, the captains of the New Queen, Camano Sound, Miss Helen and Laredo pleaded guilty to the charges. They all are from the Vancouver area.

Court was told that they were unlawfully fishing last Aug. 14 on the westward side of a surf-line, an imaginary boundary that runs across the westerly entrance of Juan de Fuca Strait.

They were spotted on a patrol vessel's radar in dense fog.

Students' Walk

Blisters Ahead In Good Cause

Several thousand people may be walking briskly up the centre of Douglas Street on November 25.

It will be "Project 100," an enterprise supported Thursday at a meeting of city council.

Alderman Robert Baird described it as the Centennial project of students of the district. It will be a 25-mile walk which will start at the Legislative Buildings and make as many circles of the Greater Victoria area as are needed to make up the 25 miles.

MOBILE CLASSROOMS
The idea is to raise money for mobile classrooms for use in Malaysia, Africa and other underdeveloped parts of the Commonwealth.

Each walker will try to find a sponsor who will pay for him for every mile accomplished, the money to be turned over to the student fund.

Such walks have been held in other cities, and in Victoria on a smaller scale, and have been a great success, the alderman said.

"CARDIAC MILE"
Mayor Hugh Stephen and a number of aldermen said they would walk the first "cardiac mile," and finance other walkers.

"I am sponsoring a young lad and I am paying him $2 a mile," the mayor said. "He will probably make the whole distance, too. I stand to be out $50 on this deal."

Alderman Baird said he, too, had chosen his walker.

There will be blister checkpoints," asked the mayor.

Sooke Teacher's Survey:

Boredom, Little Freedom Pupils' Main Complaints

By BILL STAVDAL

David McClimmon, a teacher and counsellor at Edward Milne high school near Sooke, recently asked a class of Grade 12 boys to list 10 criticisms of the education system.

On Thursday night he presented the results at a panel discussion on education at Saseenos elementary school.

The number one complaint, Mr. McClimmon told an audience of about 150 people, is that there is not enough freedom in school. Students want fewer regulations governing dress, behavior and attendance.

The other nine criticisms, in order of frequency: boring classes; unpalatable content; too much homework; too many courses; too few courses; compulsory courses; waste of teachers' time on "seat-warmers"; lack of teachers' time for individual help; and impersonal teacher-student relations.

The information came during an informal debate on education sponsored by a group of parents associated with Saseenos school.

Panelists were Alan Newberry, principal of the school and a Sanich counsellor; University of Victoria student John Bartanus Jr.; Howard Elder, Sooke representative on the capital regional district; Dr. Frank Jirik, a research chemist; hot-line broadcaster Vic Williams, and Mr. McClimmon.

The discussion was undirected. Members of the audience gave their views along with the panelists.

Some opinions: "The purpose of education is not to teach children what to think, but how to think," said a man in the audience.

Mr. Elder stated that education is "teaching how to get along with your neighbors."

John Bartanus Jr. (son of the Sooke School Board chairman), commented: "Education should promote more free discussion of anything and everything." He suggested religion and sex for a start.

Mr. Jirik defended constructive rebellion—"the rebellion against gravity, the rebellion against not being able to see as far as an eagle."

Mr. Newberry said that the role of the schools is not "to train people for the industrialists." Much of the curriculum is irrelevant, he said.

He declared that the schools should prepare youngsters to move through the world, leaving job training for later.

Mr. Newberry also suggested that people other than teachers have a place in the classroom.

"Why can't we introduce community leaders, people who are trained in arts, hobbies and skills?" he asked.

He suggested that teachers' insecurity is behind their reluctance to allow other professions into the classroom.

Mr. McClimmon countered that people of many trades and professions come into the school on the annual "occupation day."
